NO AGREEMENT

Is the Probable Outcome of the Luetgert Trial.

Juror Harley is the Most Obstinate.

He Strongly Holds Out for Acquittal.

Judge Tuthill Insists Upon a Verdict and and Will Not Release the Jury Until They Agree.

CRIMINAL COURT BUILDING, CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Judge Tuthill called the jury into court at 10:30 this morning. From a neighboring window Juror Harley was seen shaking hands with the other jurors and it was then believed a verdict had been reached. Ten minutes later the Judge sent for the prisoner and Luetgert was taken up the back elevator in the building and into court. This meeting turned out to have been sought by some of the members of the jury, and the facts concerning it are thus given by State's Attorney Deneen:

"I was in my office this morning," said Mr. Deneen, "when I was informed that my presence was desired in the court room and that the Luetgert jury had a report or something of that nature to make to the judge. Judge Tuthill, ex-Judge Vincent and Attorney Phalen had been notified and were in the court room when I reached it. Luetgert was sent for and came into court cool and smiling. Then the jury was brought in. It was apparent at once who had been holding the jury." The state's attorney continued. "Judge Tuthill inquired if the jury had any communication to make. Juror Harley was on his feet in a jiffy and began asking questions. He desired instruction on questions of fact. Harley wanted to know if it was possible to leave out certain evidence altogether, exclude it entirely, and then consider the other evidence and make up a verdict from it. This query excited the laugh of those who were opposed to Harley, and it was noticeable that nine of the jurors laughed. Judge Tuthill replied that the question was an improper one for him to answer. 'You have your instructions,' said his honor. 'Note the reading of them. You will find that nearly all of them contain the language, 'and if after consideration of all the evidence you find beyond a reasonable doubt,' etc. That should be sufficient. The court cannot now instruct you upon a question of fact. You will retire to your jury room and return to further consideration of the case.' That was all that occurred. Several of the jurors wanted to know how much longer they were going to be kept in the jury room. Judge Tuthill paid no attention to the inquiry. Juror Harley is the man who is holding the jury. He now has two adherents. They are Jurors Holabird and Behmiller, but both of these I believe are weakening. It looks to me now as though there will be a disagreement. I believe that before night the jury will stand eleven to one and that the only man who will be able to break a disagreement will be Harley. Judge Tuthill is determined the jury shall have ample time to consider all the evidence in the case and he will not discharge them before tonight or tomorrow."

The same arrangements that were made yesterday with regard to the reception of a verdict prevailed today. Judge Tuthill left the criminal court building immediately after the scene in the court room. He went to his home on Jackson boulevard and it was agreed that he should be notified at once in case the jury signified that a verdict had been reached.

Ex-Judge Vincent and Attorney Phalen went to their offices down town and kept in touch with telephone communication all day.

Before he left the building Judge Tuthill intimated to the counsel in the case that he might return late in the afternoon or this evening and call the jury before him to ask if there was any indication or possibility of a verdict being reached. Judge Tuthill also hinted that if the reply indicated even that there was the slightest chance for a verdict, back the jury would go and remain the balance of the week unless a verdict was handed into court in the meantime.

When Luetgert walked into Judge Tuthill's court room this morning he believed a verdict had been reached. He also believed that he had been acquitted. With a smile on his face he walked up to ex-Judge Vincent and Attorney Phalen and warmly shook each of them by the hand. Then turning towards State Attorney Deneen he grasped the small hand of the states attorney in his monster palm and exclaimed: "Well, Mr. Deneen I am glad it is all over. You gave me a terrible tongue lashing the last day but you were fair. You did not go outside the evidence."

States Attorney Deneen shook the hand of the giant German, smiled and bowed but said nothing.

LUETGERT BELIEVES IN A DISAGREEMENT.

Luetgert was returned to the jail a few minutes after 11 o'clock. As he passed down the corridor to his cell he was plied with questions from a dozen reporters. His demeanor implied that he had heard nothing bad. "They did not do anything in there" he said. "They sent for me and said I had to be in court when anything of the kind went on. I went in but they did not do a thing. It is a disagreement sure," said the noted prisoner as he walked springingly into his cell.

It is rumored that Judge Tuthill this morning opened three letters offering bribes to the jury. This report cannot be verified as the judge and those connected with the trial are absolutely inaccessible.

THE JURY'S STANDING.

State's Attorney Deneen explained this afternoon that he based his opinion as to the probable standing of the jury late this afternoon at eleven for conviction to one for acquittal upon a question asked during the conference this morning. The question was asked by Juror Harley and was, "If eleven jurors should vote for conviction and one for acquittal can the majority compel the minority to change his vote?" Judge Tuthill refused to answer the question. States Attorney Deneen said he did not desire the impression to get abroad that he knew any more about the probably action of the jury than any one else, but the manner in which the question was put in the court room led him to the conclusion that before night the jury would stand at the figures indicated.

The loudest discussion the jury has yet had took place soon after the jurors had finished their midday meal. A court bailiff remarked that the talk was warm and that half a dozen of the jurors were talking at once. The report of the wrangle interested the waiting friends of Luetgert and also the state's attorney. Results are expected from the discussions. Nothing but a disagreement can be hoped for from stubborn silence.

VANDALISM IN THE COURT ROOM.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—The court room of Judge Tuthill, before whom the Luetgert case was tried, is the scene of vandalism that has no parallel in the annals of sensational trials. Certain of the spectators took advantage of the absence of the bailiffs and Clerk Knoch and seized on every portable article of stationery. Sections of the improvised desks used by the newspaper reporters during the tedious ordeal were even carried off by the morbid crowd. Fearing that the relic-hunters would grow desperate and demolish the fixtures a policeman was detailed inside the bar. The few ornaments which remained after the chamber had been abandoned were nastily removed across the hallway.

The gavel which Judge Tuthill has wielded to keep the feminine section of the attendance seated has disappeared. Clerk Knoch had hoped to secure the rosewood mallet, with an autograph of the presiding judge on the handle, for his club and was sorely disappointed. So bare was Judge Tuthill's desk of court materials that had the jury returned and he been summoned to receive their finding he would have had to send to a neighboring drug store for paper and writing apparatus. During a temporary absence of the judge and clerk the bailiffs at the door relaxed their vigilance and went to a room above the jury's quarters.

While they were gone the sections of the long wooden writing benches were removed. These were cut in squares of a foot, so that they might be hidden under an overcoat without exciting suspicion should any of the wardens be encountered.

When Clerk Knoch returned he took means to discover further attempts on the part of the souvenir hunters. The drawers of Judge Tuthill's desk were unlocked and the books and papers removed to Judge Horton's chambers. Electric light bulbs and globes were securely fastened so that they could not be made away with by the morbidly inclined. A guard was instructed to watch the furniture and window sashes and arrest anybody who tried to leave his initials in the pillars.

Visitors to the court room are now closely watched by the bailiffs and special guard behind the rail of the court's bench. The top of that piece of furniture was as bare as if a hurricane had swept across the room. Any attempt to get inside the rail, except by persons known to the custodians of the place is fruitless.

Judge Tuthill, in the course of his frequent communications with the court room by telephone, inquired after his gavel and inkstand. He said he was particularly anxious to keep both as mementoes for his wife. When he was told that all the small articles were gone he expressed himself in vigorous language.

ANGRY AT M'KINLEY.

Indorsement of Tracy by the Executive Starts a Row—Butterworth Scored for Having Talked Too Freely.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The republican friends of President McKinley who favor the candidacy of Seth Low for mayor are furious because Benjamin Butterworth, commissioner of pensions, was allowed to come to Brooklyn to speak for General Tracy. They are particularly incensed at Butterworth for committing the administration to Tracy's candidacy and for giving the impression in a boasting way that he had been commissioned by the president to do so.

The part of Butterworth's speech that has led to the most severe censure of the administration was the following statement which he made at a dinner at the Union League club in Brooklyn after the Clermont avenue rink meeting:

"On the evening of the 2d of November a telegraphic message will be anxiously awaited in the white house. President McKinley said to me night before last: 'Ben, you know how earnestly I feel in regard to the triumph of the republican party in Greater New York.'"

When shown this quotation in Washington yesterday President McKinley refused to make any statement with reference to it. Private Secretary Porter, with a fine show of frankness, said the president had determined not to interfere in the Greater New York campaign. Republicans assume, however, that the president had been put on record for General Tracy as squarely as if he had made a speech for him.

BICYCLE EVENT.

Starbuck and Michael Up for a Race.

Will Decide the Middle Distance Championship in a Contest on Thanksgiving Night.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—Frank J. Starbuck and Jimmy Michael, the middle distance bicycle riders, have been matched to race twenty-five miles, paced, at Madison Square Garden, New York, on Thanksgiving night. The pacemaking will be done with tandem teams, the number of which is limited to twelve teams, one each side. The terms of the race are that Michael is to get a guarantee of $1,000 and Starbuck gets a guarantee of $800 and 50 per cent. of the gross receipts over that amount. Starbuck is under suspension, but notwithstanding that fact, will commence training for the race at once. It is understood that in order to get the Philadelphian out of his difficulty with the League of American Wheelmen, the New York promoters will pay the claims of the pacemakers in the Lesna race. Starbuck was suspended indefinitely by L. A. W. Chairman Mott, for failing to pay the men who acted as his pacemakers in the race with Lesna, the Swiss champion.

QUART SHOP WRECKED.

Unknown Men Use Dynamite on a Greenwood, Ind., Saloon.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 20.—A "quart" shop at Greenwood, owned and operated by Patrick Murphy, of this city, gave the villagers much offense, and early yesterday a charge of dynamite was placed under the building and the structure and contents were scattered broadcast.

Charles Stevens, bartender, and John Devers, a companion, sleeping in a rear room, were thrown into the street and severely hurt. The force of the explosion broke every window pane in adjoining residences, and aroused every villager.

Recently there has been much lawlessness in Greenwood after nightfall, the blame for which was placed upon the "quart" shop.

UNIQUE FIGHT.

A Mule, at Elwood, Kicks a Bull Dog Into Eternity.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 20.—A bull dog on the farm of George Hull, near Elwood, was attacked by a mule. The dog sprang at the mule's throat, but his grip was weak and he was shaken off and kicked in the side. A second time the dog caught the mule by the throat and for twenty minutes clung with desperate tenacity.

The mule tried a strategic move by lying down and catching the dog's hindquarters with his teeth, which were torn and lacerated until the dog loosed his hold. Then the mule regained his feet and stamped his antagonist to death, continuing the attack until the dog had lost all resemblance to original shape.

CHESS PLAYER DEAD.

Berthold Englisch Attacked by Brain Troubles.

VIENNA, Oct. 20.—Berthold Englisch, the well known chess player, is dead. The cause of death was brain affection. Englisch withdrew from the recent tournament at Berlin, declaring that his head was not clear. Rumor accused him of accepting a bribe from a weak opponent to withdraw, but his death disproved that report.

HIS OWN FUNERAL SERMON.

Rev. G. F Wiseman Will Hear It Preached This Month.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 20.—On the fourth Sunday of this month the funeral sermon of Rev. G. F. Wiseman will be preached at Vadis, and Mr. Wiseman, who is still alive, will be present at the service. He states that it is his desire to know just what kind of a man he is before he dies, and he has instructed the minister to deliver the same sermon he would in case he was actually dead. Rev. Mr. Ireland has consented to perform the service, and Mr. Wiseman has invited his relatives, friends and congregation to attend.

NEW YORK NEWS.

Both of the Old Parties Fear the Effects of the Greater New York on the State Ticket.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Politicians of all sorts are greatly interested in the probable effect of the bitterness displayed in municipal politics upon the results in the state at large. The effects principally discussed are those affecting the chances of Wallace and Parker, respectively the republican and democratic nominees for chief judge of the court of appeals, and those of the legislative candidates individually. It is conceded that the bitterness developed between the partisans of Low and Tracy, if not stronger than that between George and Tammany, is in more evidence and lively to be more widespread in its results.

Straight democrats claim, though they can give no substantial basis for their assertion, that Parker will run so far ahead of Wallace in Greater New York as to secure his election. Already there are charges of trading in legislative candidates and the length and complexity of the ballots cannot fail to confuse the more illiterate voters. Conservative men are beginning to comment upon the belittling of the George vote by leaders of the regular parties and recall to attention the vote of 1886, in which the single taxer received more than 65,000 votes, when before election no one would concede a third of that total. The deduction the conservatives make is that George will surprise the mininisers of 1897 as he confounded those of 1886. The straight republicans are leaving no means untried to make the mass meeting at Lenox lyceum tonight noteworthy for attendance and influence. Secretary of the Interior Bliss will preside. General Tracy and Governor Black will speak and arrangements for overflow meetings have been perfected. Richard Croker is credited with the prediction that Van Wyck will have a plurality of 75,000 and 50,000 is "safe to bet on." Meanwhile there is more talk of wagers and odds than is visible since betting is supposed to have begun and the actual placing of money has not as yet begun to any marked extent.

FELL THIRTY FEET.

Charles Kramer, Jr., Falls From a Hay Mow.

Charles Kramer, jr., a young man twenty-three years old, who lives with his father on a farm just north of Robison park, fell from a hay mow last evening and received injuries which are very serious and may cripple him for life. Young Mr. Kramer was helping his father pitch hay from a mow in the big barn, when he lost his balance and fell a distance of thirty feet. He was rendered unconscious by the fall. Dr. Carl Schilling, who was summoned, found that the man had sustained a compound fracture of the left leg and the right ankle was badly sprained. It will be several months before the unfortunate young man will be able to be around again and he may be permanently crippled.

IMPALED ON A PICKET.

Albert Keller, a lad living on Elm street, fell while walking on a picket fence yesterday afternoon. One of the sharp pickets entered his thigh, inflicting a serious, though not dangerous wound.

FELL FROM A BUILDING.

BICYCLE THIEF.

Sheriff Melching Holding a Man for Battle Creek Officers.

C. H. Watkins is the name of a young man held in the county jail by Sheriff Melching to await the arrival of officers from Battle Creek, Mich.

The fellow was in New Haven yesterday afternoon and professed to be an officer in pursuit of horse thieves. He rode a bicycle and had a revolver and a pair of beautiful handcuffs of modern pattern.

The sheriff telephoned that the man be held and he proceeded at once to New Haven. He recognized the bicycle as one advertised to have been stolen at Battle Creek and brought the man to Fort Wayne.

The wheel is unquestionably the one stolen in Michigan and the Battle Creek officers have wired in response to Sheriff Melching that an officer will be here today for the man. Watkins is believed to be a high-class crook.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON

Preached on Hope and Life to Eight Hundred Convicts.

The Great Actor Artlessly Told How They Might Make Men of Themselves—The Solitary Shepherd.

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Eight hundred convicts, garbed in gray, sat in the chapel of the state prison at Charlestown Sunday. To that strange audience, impatient but silent, entered Rip Van Winkle—Joseph Jefferson.

The actor, at whose bidding tens of thousands have laughed or wept, was there to preach hope to these hundreds almost hopeless. He had come to remind them they could make men of themselves; they could begin life anew.

Chaplain Barnes, of the prison, had invited Jefferson. But his was no wishy-washy sermon. He knows that strong drink fills the prisons. So he preached temperance. But the word "temperance" he did not utter.

With Jefferson was his little grandson and some men devoted to prison work. Chaplain Barnes prayed. Then the prisoners sang a hymn. As their voices rose in a gruff chorus Jefferson seemed much affected. Then the man of supremest art artlessly told of an adventure of his that bore its own moral.

He was hunting in Australia years ago. He had left his "home station," galloped twenty miles and dismounted to eat his lunch. Suddenly a flock of cockatoos flew by him, scared. Then he went on:

"Just at that moment a large black collie dog came bounding out of the bushes and suddenly stopped in front of me. For a moment I was startled. The dog passed, eyed me keenly, then, coming slowly up, walked around me, and at last approached and licked my hand, which I had held out to him. He then ran away.

"I have never seen a dog act in so singular a manner and was wondering what it could mean, when a sharp, joyful bark warned me that he was returning, and, sure enough, he had come back, wagging his tail, and followed by the gaunt figure of a man, thinly clad, barefooted and with a wide-brimmed frayed straw hat on his head. He was about fifty years of age, and as he removed his hat and made me a well-mannered, dignified bow, I could see that though he was undoubtedly a shepherd, he had once been a gentleman.

"As he stood bareheaded before me the wind blew his long, thin, sandy hair about his brow and he regarded me with a strange, far-off look in his eyes. I met several shepherds after this and noticed that same strained expression. They live so much alone—sometimes even three or four months without seeing a human being, that they form this habit of looking over the plains, hoping that they may catch sight of some one to relieve the awful monotony of their lives.

"The man sat down quietly beside me and ate sparingly and rather mechanically of the lunch, always sharing his morsel with Jack, his dog. I took out a flask of whiskey, and, pouring out some of it into a cup, offered my guest a drink. His eyes beamed with a longing look as he saw the liquor, and, turning on me a strange, frightened look, said: 'No; none of that. Put it away please. I don't like the sight of it.'

"I rose to make my departure, when he said: 'You won't go tonight, will you? It's too late. I wish you'd stay in my hut tonight. It's so long since I have seen a human face—over three months. A man only comes once in a great while to bring provisions, and that is all we see of humanity from one year's end to the other. Do stay tonight, won't you?'

"'I'd like to oblige you,' I replied, 'but they will be uneasy about me at the home station.'

"'But are you sure you know the way? You might get lost.'

"'Oh, no,' I replied.

"The poor fellow hung his head and looked the picture of despair.

"'How far is the hut?' I asked.

"'Only a mile or so, I assure you.'

"I agreed to go to it, so he started off at a good pace, fearing I might change my mind, I suppose. The dog ran ahead, barking, and I followed on horseback. We soon came upon his hut. It was built of mud, sticks and straw, with hard earth for a floor. The shepherd prepared a cup of tea—the usual beverage of the bush.

"The sun had gone down behind the low horizon with the same affect that it does at sea. As we sat outside, upon a couple of rude blocks of wood, drinking our refreshing tea, the moon rose up, shedding its soft light over this mysterious scene; there was no sound but the distant tinkle of a sheep's bell and the crackling of the little fire that was boiling the tea. The smoke went up straight and silently into the still air. The loneliness was bad enough with two men; what must it have been with one?

"I questioned him about his past life. It seems he had been educated at Eton; then he became a fast youth in London, where he studied for the law, and in a short time rose to be a successful barrister. He had married early, and had one child, a daughter, born to him. After two years of wedded life he lost his wife and child. Despairingly he took to drink, and, being

A MOB AFTER THEM.

Seven Brutal Italians Have a Narrow Escape.

METROPOLIS, Ill., Oct 20.—Sheriff Parks, of Williamson county, and a deputy arrived today from Carterville with seven Italians to be lodged in the Massac county jail for safety from an infuriated mob of 150 men. The Italians, it is charged, murdered a Mr. Young Saturday night near Carterville, brutally stamping out his brains and bowels, while George Colombo, it is alleged, cut the poor victim's liver out with a butcher knife. They will be held here until next Monday.

DESERVED TRIBUTE

Resolutions Extolling His Worth as a Citizen Adopted by the Officers of Allen County.

This afternoon the officers of Allen county met in the circuit court room and listened to the reports of the committees appointed yesterday to take appropriate action on the death of the late John Orff, commissioner-elect of Allen county. The committee on resolutions, through its chairman, Prosecuting Attorney N. D. Doughman, reported the following

RESOLUTIONS:

WHEREAS, By the death of John Orff a valued citizen is taken away. A resident of this county for more than fifty years, for more than fifty years actively engaged in business pursuits here in our midst, we have learned to look upon him as one of the landmarks of the place. Honest and fair in all his dealings, the name of John Orff had become the synonym with his fellows for honor and uprightness. Of him it could be truly said, his word was as good as his bond and his bond as good as the government's.

Solicited often to be a servant of the people, he declined always, feeling that he could serve better as a private than as an officer; and that cares of public office would not harmonize with the duties of his business, to his family and to society. Over-persuaded at last, he consented to sacrifice his own feelings and to stand as candidate of the people for one of the most important offices—county commissioner. Most heartily did the people accept the sacrifice he offered.

Without a word of comment, except of commendation, he received the highest vote of any candidate on the ticket. He was gratified and the people without regard to party were satisfied with his honor.

The honor was soon enough for him but too late for the people who wanted his services. Before he could become the people's servant death summoned him hence.

Full of years, full of honor, full of the love and respect of his fellows, he has shaken the dust from his garments and gone up higher, and the people mourn their loss.

We, the public servants of Allen county, join our grief with that of the people. To us the loss seems greater than to others for we had anticipated many years of co-work with this good, true and honored man.

BE IT RESOLVED, That we, the officers of Allen county, attend the funeral of John Orff in a body.

That these resolutions be spread of record in the records of the commissioners of Allen county and that the auditor furnish the family of John Orff with a copy of the same.

That the court house be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days.

N. D. DOUGHMAN,
THOMAS GREER, SR.,
L. J. BOBILYA.

October 20, 1897.

The resolutions were adopted unanimously. The report of the floral committee was received, after which the meeting adjourned and the officers proceeded in a body by special street car to the residence of the deceased to attend the funeral.

QUEER DECREE.

A Chicago Justice Who Has a Practical Head.

Gives a Boy the Alternative of Losing Some of His Skin or Being Held to the Grand Jury.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Whether to risk being held to the grand jury on a charge of assault, or to part with a portion of his cuticle, so that his victim may benefit by a skin grafting operation is the alternative which faces Paul Ozyet, a lad of fourteen years, who threw hot water on Anton Kwitko, scalding him so severely that an operation is made imperative. In Justice Sabath's court the boy was given his choice of the two evils and allowed until October 28 to consider the proposition.

SUPREMACY

Of the United States in Steel Making Conceded Abroad.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon, during the course of a long article on American competition in the iron and steel industries, says:

"Today we find the United States not only challenging our supremacy in neutral markets, but even obtaining a foothold in England. The causes which are giving the United States such a favorable position are permanent, and everything points to the United States remaining the cheapest steel producing country in the world."

STATE WINS.

Jury Finds Against Frank Irey and Policy Games.

The Case Appealed to the Circuit Court—Prosecutor Doughman Talks About Perjury.

A few minutes past 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the jury in the policy case against Frank Irey retired to the council chamber in charge of Lieutenant Lapp. Shortly after 5 o'clock they agreed upon a verdict, finding the defendant guilty and imposing a fine of $10 and costs. The case was appealed to the circuit court by the defendant's attorneys, Henry Colerick and Will Ryan.

The proceedings yesterday started out with evidence introduced by the state. Several witnesses were examined, but only one of them, Edward Keim, gave evidence that was material. He is a barber in the employ of Ed Schele. He testified that he had purchased tickets from the defendant and on one occasion had made a small winning.

Ed Schele, Charles Thieme, Mat Momper, A. J. Moynihan and Joseph Oddon were examined. Mr. Thieme stated that he and other firemen at the Central engine house had purchased policy tickets at Oddon's grocery, which was a substation for the distribution. Mr. Oddon swore that he never had anything to do with policy men, had never bought or sold any tickets. Mr. Moynihan testified to having seen agents sell policy tickets in barber shops, but could not identify Irey as the person so engaged.

Prosecutor Doughman made a strong argument. He read the law bearing on the case and denounced the policy game as a "poor man's gambling scheme," making it all the more dangerous. He said that evidence sufficient to convict had been secured and that anybody could easily see that many witnesses swore to lies. They were guilty of perjury, he said, and he intimated that the state would lay the matter before the grand jury.

The argument of the defense was on the line that no case had been made against Irey because the state had not shown that there was any game of chance and the evidence failed to show that Irey was connected with the game. Mr. Colerick attacked the validity of the affidavit, stating that it was imperfect in that it was not specific in its charges.

The jury on the first ballot stood 11 to 1 for conviction, and the succeeding ballots were the same up to 8 o'clock.

MAY DROP IT.

It is believed that Mr. Irey's case will never come to trial in the circuit court. Today he was being counseled by some of his friends to walk up and pay the fine without further trouble.

MANY CONSUMERS

Added to the List of the Fort Wayne Gas Company.

Nearly Three Miles of New Mains This Season—Pumping Engines to be Tested the Coming Week.

Three hundred more consumers will use natural gas this year, making a total of 7,000 on the books of the Fort Wayne Gas company. Superintendent Max Hoffman stated to a SENTINEL reporter that the extensions for this year would be completed by next Saturday.

"We have laid three miles of pipe this year," he said, "and this will give several hundred families an opportunity of using gas next winter for the first time. We will be in better shape to furnish gas next winter than ever before because we will have our pumping station at Bluffton in operation whenever it becomes necessary to force the gas by artificial means. We will test the pumps some time next week to discover what the best results will be."

The extensions this year were on the following streets: Wagner, Furman, East Washington, Glasgow avenue, Force, South Wayne avenue, Cottage avenue, Runion avenue, and several others.

BRUTAL HUSBAND.

Was Abusive to His Wife—Two Toughs, Geisman and Hickey, Threaten to Kill a Conductor.

This morning, upon a warrant sworn to by Humane Officer Schlaudroff, Herman Shulz, who resides at 38 Wilt street, was arrested by Officer Greer on the charge of cruelly treating his wife. It is alleged that Shulz went home last night and asked his wife to consent to accompany him to the Turner's ball, and when she gave good reasons for not being able to do so he flew into a rage and threatened violence. The humane officer was notified that Shulz has come home frequently in a partly intoxicated condition, at such times being abusive to his family, even going so far as to threaten to murder all of them and then end his own life. The neighbors expressed a fear that the man might really do harm.

Shulz was taken before the mayor and was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $19.50, which he paid. He was warned to conduct himself properly in the future or stand the consequences.

TWO BAD 'UNS.

George Geisman and Daniel Hickey, of this city, boarded a freight train at Van Wert last night and told the conductor to keep his mouth shut and he would not get into trouble. They proposed to ride to Fort Wayne, they said, if they had to pitch the conductor off the train to do it. They rode, but when the train pulled into the yards here a policeman was on hand to meet them, having been notified by telegram. They accompanied the officer peacefully, but threatened the conductor with a good licking the first opportunity that came along. Geisman and Hickey were sent to jail for twenty days.

OTHER CASES.

Two train jumpers were let go.

JOHN J. WHITE

Heirs of the Deceased Merchant Petition for His Appointment—Other News of the Courts.

The late James B. White died without leaving a will and his large estate will be apportioned among the heirs in the manner prescribed by law. The affairs of the estate will be administered by the capable hands of the eldest son, John W. White, president of the White National bank, who was this morning appointed administrator by Judge O'Rourke, of the circuit court. A petition was presented to Judge O'Rourke praying for the appointment of John W. White as administrator of the estate. The petition was signed by Maria White, widow of the deceased; Edward White, Grace M. White, James B. White, jr., and A. B. White, children of the deceased, all being his heirs-at-law. In his application for an administrator John W. White states that the deceased left a personal estate of the probable value of $30,000. The bond approved by the court is made in the sum of $74,000 and is signed by John W. White, Maria White, Edward White and R. L. Ronay as sureties.

MAY GO TO COURT.

Charles Pape Says His Land is Being Undervalued.

He Says He Will Enter Into Litigation Before He Will Accept an Unsatisfactory Figure.

There appears to be a cloud rising on one side of the horizon which surrounds the land the city talks of condemning for waterworks purposes. Charles Pape thinks he has substantial reason to believe that the commissioners appointed to appraise his land have put a price on it that will be far below its value for the purpose it is to be used for, and if this turns out to be the case when the commissioners make known the result of their investigation, he may go to the courts. He states emphatically that he will do so.

"I will fight this to a finish," said Mr. Pape, "if it becomes necessary to do so. I put a price of $1,250 an acre on eight acres if from the choicest ground. But if two acres of the eight are taken from less valuable ground on the other side of the road I ask $1,000 an acre. These prices are fair. The city should place a value on this land, not what it is worth as barren soil, but what it is to be worth for the purposes it will be put to. I am making no threats, but if what I hear is true the commissioners will place a figure away below the value I place upon the land, and if the city tries to condemn it at such figures I will enter into the courts at once."

It was a large and merry throng that enjoyed the free hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Bash at their country home last evening. About one hundred guests from the city and county were present. Mr. Bash had engaged the Aboite band of sixteen pieces and good music was not lacking. In the early part of the evening refreshments were served and later old-fashioned dances were indulged in.

THE jury before whom the policy case was tried in Mayor Scherer's court performed their duty well. The policy agent on trial was found guilty, and unless he appeals his case to a higher court the accrued costs will make his experience unprofitable for the game. Notwithstanding the unblushing perjury of some of the witnesses enough honest testimony was secured to enable the jury honestly and fairly and in justice to convict the prisoner. And herein Mayor Scherer may find a valuable suggestion. He can smash this policy business as flat as he wishes. All he need do is to keep his officers on the trail of the gamblers. Let his pursuit of them be relentless. He has the authority, the machinery of the police department and the co-operation of the prosecuting attorney. He is able to wage a campaign that will wear the gamblers out and drive them from the city. This he can do if he wants to do it. The vigor with which he proceeds against the gamblers will determine the spirit in which he discharges his duty. Policy showed its hand in the trial just closed. It has a firm hold on the city and a large class of our citizens. It was able to suborn witnesses and is further existence in Fort Wayne menaces public decency. Let the full power of the city government be set to work to drive from the community the contemptible outlaws who are the agents of the vicious game.

SUPREME JUSTICE FIELD is one of the few justices of the supreme court who was ever prominently mentioned for the presidential candidacy. He received many votes in the democratic convention of 1880 which nominated Gen Hancock, and was spoken of in other years in connection with the nomination. Chief Justice Chase was conspicuously "mentioned" by the democrats just prior to the convention which put up Seymour, and he obtained a few votes in the liberal republican convention of 1872. In 1860, before he went to the supreme bench, he was a prominent aspirant for the candidacy in the convention which nominated Lincoln. Thus Chase has the distinction not accorded to any other man of being prominently "mentioned" for the presidential nomination by three parties. John McLean, who was on the supreme bench from the beginning of Jackson's service in the presidency to the beginning of Lincoln's, had his name coupled with the candidacy in several conventions of two parties, the whig and the republican.

AT THE request of the hygienic council for the department of the Seine, the prefect of police has just issued an order to all the haircutters of Paris containing instructions as to the measure to be taken for guarding against those diseases which are likely to be spread by the exercise of their trade. First of all, all metal instruments are to be plunged directly after use into a vessel of soapy water which has been boiling for at least ten minutes. All combs of tortoise shell, ivory, celluloid or buffalo horn are to be replaced as far as possible by metal ones, so that they may more easily be cleansed and disinfected; scissors, razors, clippers and brushes are to be kept in a stove heated to 100 degrees C., or in a closed receptacle in the lower part of which is a solution containing formaldehyde and sodium chloride in the proportion of fifty grammes of the former to 200 of the latter. Before use, shaving brushes must be dipped into boiling water, and instead of powder puffs, blowers (pulverisateurs a sec) are to be used. Finally, all hairdressers must wash their hands before passing from one customer to another, and after anyone has had his hair cut, damp sand is to be sprinkled on the floor so that the hair may be swept up and burnt at the end of the day. The hairdressers have protested against this order, which they declare to be quite inapplicable to their trade.

THE genial English poet, Tom Moore, during his boyish days, indulged, like a number of other English writers, in a tirade and abuse of America and Americans. How deeply he regretted this folly is seen in a letter recently published in which he said: "This life is just long enough to commit errors in, but too short to allow us time to repair them, and there are few of my errors I regret more sincerely than the rashness I was guilty of in publishing these rude and boyish tirades against the Americans. My sentiments, both with respect to the national and individual character, are much changed since then, and I should blush, as a lover of liberty, if I allowed the hasty prejudice of my youth to blind me now to the bright promise which America affords of a better and happier order things than the world has ever yet witnessed. If you can but continue to be as good republicans as we of Europe seem determined to be good royalists, the new and old world need soon have no other distinction than the hemisphere of freedom and the hemisphere of slaves."

IT IS difficult to understand why the honest and intelligent citizens of New York do not apply to their politics the same good sense they apply to their business concerns. Under their new charter the new municipal corporation will have millions upon millions of revenues to collect and disburse and the opportunity for jobbery, corruption and stealing will be unprecedented, if an unscrupulous political organization be elevated to power. The political party that triumphs may so firmly entrench itself and construct a machine so perfect and so powerful that it may bid defiance to the public. Tammany sees this and is hungry for the long revel in the spoils that is promised. Platt sees it and he yearns for the mastership it will give him in politics. Some wise citizens also see it and, taking counsel of the situation, they have organized a movement to keep Greater New York from falling into the hands of the spoilsmen. They have nominated an ideal candidate in the person of Seth Low and if the wise and good citizens of all political parties—the men who pay taxes and have real interests at stake—would put their politics away for a little while and vote with the same spirit of common sense that controls their everyday affairs, there would be no question of the final and complete rout of the bosses and the hungry hordes they lead.

JAMES B. WHITE.

Caledonian Society Does Honor to His Memory.

An Address in Which His High Character as a Scot, Soldier and a Citizen Are Eulogized.

JAMES B WHITE

Born, June 27, 1835, at Denny Stirlingshire, Scotland.

Died, October 9, 1897, at Fort Wayne, Indiana.

The Caledonian society, of Fort Wayne, is called upon to mourn the sudden demise of its leader, its best friend, its most ardent supporter, and its mainstay and defender. These are no idle words, no fulsome praise, for our de ceased companion was foremost in all that gives life to this society and his place will not soon, if ever, be filled.

Our mourning is sincere, our grief deep, our cup of sorrow brimming full.

James B White was born in Scotland, his father being a prominent calico manufacturer of Denny, not far from Glasgow. As customary in those days he was apprenticed to a useful trade, that of a tailor, at the age of twelve, but after two years' service, he entered his father's establishment and remained there until his nineteenth year, when he determined to seek his fortunes in the new world and landed in New York in the summer of 1851.

Soon after and in the same year he came to Fort Wayne, making his journey by rail, by steamboat on the lakes and by canal to his destination. He landed in debt for his transportation, but immediately went to work at his trade. The work was not to his liking, and he tried his "greatest hand" at stonecutting, but soon returned to the trade he had learned. He tried new occupations in Cincinnati and St. Louis, returned to Fort Wayne, and later established himself in Warsaw, where the outbreak of the war found him.

Although a patriotic Scot, loving his native country, he was also a patriotic American, loving his adopted country so well that he at once volunteered for the defense of its honor.

In August, 1861, he assisted in organizing the 30th Regiment, Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and became captain of Company I.

It was early sent to the front, and he was wounded in the side by a minnie ball at the battle of Shiloh.

Some trouble arose between him and the regimental commander, which his proud spirit would not permit him to endure, and he resigned his commission. Later he became sutler to the Eighty-eighth, and was twice captured and once lost all his stores in a raid in Tennessee. Returning to Fort Wayne he established himself in business and created for himself a fortune by wise and prudent management and excelling foresight. His life among us has been an open book.

The poor looked upon him as their friend. Elected to congress he proved true to the interests of those who sent him there, and was still the poor man's friend. He did his duty as he saw it. Honest, firm and unyielding in the right, he adorned every station in life to which he was called. Like other patriotic Americans he gave a good share of his love to Old Scotia, as his devotion to this society's interests and to Scottish history testifies.

A lover of his home, of his wife and children, devoted to them one and all, he set an example for others to emulate, and left them a heritage worth more than the wealth he gathered; a good name, unstained by any wrong doing to his fellow man.

He was essentially a self-made man. He was a hater of sham and hypocrisy and a lover of the good and noble.

A good citizen, a brave soldier, an all around man of business, a man whose ear and heart were always open to the appeals of the unfortunate, has gone from our midst, and will be no more with us, but in memory.

But that memory will be rich in good things, and his few faults forgotten, his virtues which were many will shine with greater lustre as the days go by.

To his bereaved wife and family we extend our heartfelt sympathy and direct that a copy of this memorial be furnished them, that it be inscribed upon the records of the society and published in the city papers.

MAY LOCATE A BREWERY.

C. F. Orff, of St. Louis, Hunting a Place to Manufacture Beer.

[Bluffton News.]

C. F. Orff, of St. Louis, was in the city this morning enroute to Fort Wayne looking up a location for a brewery. He had in view the shoe factory if it could be bought and sewered suitable for his business and also the land on which the Freeman quarry is located. The last location would be valuable to him from the fact that it possesses an inexhaustible spring. No negotiations of any kind were entered into, but Mr. Orff will return here next Monday to see whether he can buy suitable property. His venture is a private one, and he will ask no subsidy, something he probably couldn't get. The brewery would employ about twenty hands.

NERVURA

For the Nerves and Blood.

The scientist who is now doing most for his fellow-men is Dr. Greene, the distinguished specialist who discovered Dr. Greene's Nervura remedy for the nerves and blood. The overwork and overanxiety peculiar to American life are a severe drain upon the vital forces. It is this drain which Dr. Greene's Nervura counteracts. Shattered nerves are strengthened, weakened blood is vitalized, and the whole physical and mental system restored to its original power and activity. Nervous prostration and morbid susceptibility to excitement are removed by this great remedy, together with such symptoms as melancholia, sleeplessness, irritability, nervous dyspepsia and headaches.

REINDEER STATIONS

The Only Solution of the Alaska Transportation Problem.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 20.—Dr. Sheldon Jackson, United States superintendent of Alaskan schools, who has just returned from Alaska, says: "There is but one solution to the transportation problem in Alaska, and that is the reindeer. He believed that the mines of the Yukon can never be fully developed without the use of the reindeer. It is my belief that the government could, to great advantage to the people living in Alaska, establish reindeer stations on the Yukon all the way from Dyea to St. Michaels. In this way mails could be transported regularly and expeditiously and the food supply would never be allowed to get to that point where a famine is imminent."

YORKTOWN

Commemorated by the Sons of the Revolution.

One hundred and sixteen years ago yesterday an incident occurred down on the Yorktown peninsula, in Old Virginia, that American citizens have always pointed to with pride." Lord Cornwall is surrendered his splendid army of Britons to General Washington and the French allies under Rochambeau, after he had been trapped by as pretty a piece of strategy as a warrior could wish to see. That "incident," the glorious victory of the Continental troops, was the beginning of the end of the war of the Revolution. It doomed the power of Great Britain in the colonies she had planted in the New World. It brought to view the effulgent prospect of a land liberated from the tyranny of kings that had nerved the patriots through six long years of war fought amid greater privations than were ever endured by soldiers of any land.

That incident was celebrated last evening in the banquet hall of the Wayne club by the Fort Wayne chapter of the Sons of the Revolution. The banquet was a notable affair, brilliant in all its settings and distinguished in its company. A more brilliant assembly of banqueters have not graced the round table of the Wayne club. The dining room was strikingly embellished with the red, white and blue, draped and festooned with a profuseness that obscured the walls. Palms and potted plants completed the simple but effective adornments.

Those who sat at the table were as follows:

Sons of the Revolution—Clark Fairbank, C. E. Bond, C. B. Fitch, John Ross McCulloch, R. H. Carnahan, C. B. Woodworth, A. E. Bulson, jr.; Otis B. Fitch, D. C. Fisher, R. T. St. John, of Marion; R. G. Thompson, Clarence S. Swann, C. E. Graves, Horace G. Granger, C. H. Newton, Theodore Lincoln, R. J. Fisher, O. J. Willson, T. L. Stitt, of Wabash; Charles A. Moores, of Indianapolis, state secretary of the society.

As guests—Henry R. Freeman, P. A. Randall, R. C. Bell, A. P. Buchman, A. L. Randall, C. R. Higgins, F. M. Randall, Robert Millhard, S. M. Foster, Dr. N. L. Deming, T. E. Ellison, Dr. M. F. Porter, Prof. J. N. Study, Van B. Perrine, Charles McGrew, of Wabash; S. L. Morris, Charles R. Lane and H. C. Rockhill.

After the elaborate menu had been disposed of, Dr. A. E. Bulson who officiated throughout the evening with conspicuous grace and versatility as the symposiarch, introduced the president of the local society of the Sons of Revolution, Mr. Clark Fairbank, who extended to the guests and the members of the society a cordial welcome and explained the purposes of the organization.

Mr. C. H. Newton responded to the toast, "Cornwallis at Yorktown," and paid to that soldier the tribute his military qualities deserved.

Mr. Charles W. Moores, of Indianapolis, responded to the toast, "The Revolutionary Army." The speaker dwelled with eloquence on the high, sturdy and patriotic character of the men comprised the patriot army and made some comparisons with subsequent wars in America.

"Old Glory" was a sentiment to which Mr. Thomas L. Stitt, of Wabash, responded with splendid eloquence, and he paid a fine tribute to the bravery of the men who went down with the United States warship Trenton in that fearful storm of the Samoan islands a few years ago.

Mr. S. M. Foster responded to the toast, "The Patriot in Times of Peace." Moral and not physical patriotism, Mr. Foster said, was needed in times of peace and it was the patriot's duty to always put his country above himself, and that avarice, greed and self-seeking were the great enemies to liberty.

Responding to the toast, "Some Reforms not Revolutionary in Character," C. B. Fitch advocated the reduction of the number of legislators, the secret ballot in making all political nominations, the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, the teaching of civil government and the duties of citizenship in our public schools and the extension of the right of suffrage to women.

Prof. J. N. Study replied to the toast, "American History," by contrasting the treatment of the subject by English and American writers. He said that he thought the time had come when a history of the late war should be written without partisan bias and which could be taught in the schools of both the northern and gulf states.

Dr. Miles F. Porter responded to the toast of "The Revolutionary Doctor," with stories of the devotion and patriotism of two of the greatest of Revolutionary heroes, Dr. Samuel Warren and Dr. Benjamin Rush. To the toast "Jonathan Abroad," Mr Ross McCulloch responded, and Mr. T. E. Ellison also responded to the toast, "Our Guests." The evening concluded with the inspiring song, "America," sung by the society and guests.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON.

weak and desperate, went down hill and lost his position.

"That once lost in London is seldom regained. Not so in America. Here, when a man falls, if he has the strength to brace up again, he goes to the west, and rubbing up against new society, absorbs fresh magnetism and recuperates at once. No one need despair in this land of the free. But London is compact. The Englishman hates to leave his home. His failings are known, and if he remains they are flung in his face. There is no escape for him, and as his friends shun him he falls deeper in disgrace.

"This was the trouble that had beset the shepherd, who, having a sensitive and perhaps weak mind, succumbed to the pressure that surrounded him, and after a time, with a broken spirit, he left England and went to the colonies. He practiced law in Melbourne for some time successfully, but the old habit came back on him, and, as he could not resist temptation, he buried himself in that sheep station.

"This was the story he told me, and there was no doubt of its truth.

"It was now getting late, and the shepherd insisted on my taking his couch—an old canvass cot with a plain gray blanket spread upon it. So, as I was tired, I accepted the offer, and lay down for a night's rest. My companion stretched his tall figure on the grass outside. Jack lay between us.

"The strangeness of the scene, together with the strong tea, seemed to banish sleep from me, and I must have been laying there for an hour, with my eyes closed but quite awake, when presently I heard something stirring. Opening my eyes, I saw the shepherd sitting up in the doorway with his head resting on his hand. He seemed uneasy, and began restlessly to pace up and down in front of the hut. The dog remained still, but I felt that he was awake and watching his master as he walked nervously backward and forward in the moonlight.

"Presently the shepherd stopped in front of the hut and came with a hesitating but irresolute step toward the door. He entered slowly, and, stooping down upon his hands and knees, crawled stealthily to the chair on which my coat was hanging. He put his hand in the breast pocket and drew forth the flask of liquor. And now he seemed bewildered, as if some strange emotion had seized upon him, and then fell upon his knees as if in prayer.

"Suddenly he seemed to rise, and, instead of drinking the liquor, placed the flask untouched back in the pocket of the coat. Then, stretching himself on the floor, with an apparent air of comfort and satisfaction, he went off to sleep.

"The whole proceeding so haunted me that it was broad daylight before I closed my eyes. When I awoke the sun was high in the heavens. My host had prepared breakfast. After our meal he spoke freely of the night's proceedings to me. I told him I had seen all that had taken place.

"'I thought it might be so,' he said. 'The old craving came upon me, so strong, too; but if I ever prayed for strength it was then. Well, at that moment there was a hand laid on my head, a calmness came over me that I had not felt for years, and when I returned the flask to your pocket I knew then, as I know now, that another drop of liquor will never pass my lips. As God is my judge, I believe it was the angel hand of my dead wife that rested on my feverish head. It is all over now, thank Heaven! and I can leave this lonely place and return to the world again with safety.'"

After the story of the shepherd Mr. Jefferson pointed a moral from the play of "Rip Van Winkle."

Then with hope rekindled the men in that gray audience went back to their sells.

MILITARY LAW

The Large Number of Lawless Characters Assembled There Makes Such a Course Necessary.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The secretary of war will issue an order today creating a military reservation in that part of Alaska lying within a radius of fifty miles of St. Michaels. The purpose is to confer upon Lieutenant Col. Randall the necessary legal authority to preserve order and protect property in this section of the country both of which are believed to be jeopardized by the large number of lawless characters gathered near the mouth of the Yukon river.

PUEBLO, Col., Oct. 20.—A special train on the Gulf road last night ran from Walsenburg to this city, fifty-seven miles, in fifty-six minutes to bring to a hospital here Senor Numan, a wealthy cattle and sheep owner, who had been shot in the abdomen by Paul Frohlich, a member of the Walsenburg council. The men quarreled in regard to a hide house which the council had ordered removed. Frohlich says that before he fired Numan had drawn a revolver. Numan denies that he had any weapon. His chances of life are only about one in fifty.

Remember that this edition contains 12,000 Illustrations, 671 maps and plans, and covers over 250,000 subjects. More than 2,000 of the world's greatest scholars have contributed to this work. It has cost over Three Million Dollars in authorship alone.

THE CHICAGO RECORD

Has secured control of this territory and will, for a LIMITED TIME ONLY, furnish this great library to their subscribers at about one-half the publishers' advertised prices, in connection with their great educational enterprise and system of home education.

One year's membership in the The Home University League, one year's subscription to "Self-Culture" (Magazine) and one copy of the new "Guide to Systematic Reading in Encyclopedia Britannica" is given FREE with each set of Encyclopedia. There is also furnished with each set an

Oak Book Case, Free.

Every subscriber—present or prospective—of THE CHICAGO RECORD can secure at wholesale rates the entire set of 30 volumes, (delivered all at once, freight paid, to any address) by making a small cash payment. The remaining payments are so spaced that they can cause no inconveniences. This arrangement allows THE RECORD'S subscribers to have the use of all the volumes from the outset.

Have you read what some of the great scholars of the world think of this storehouse of knowledge? A president of one of the largest eastern colleges says: "I will defy any man to buy 3,000 volumes that will give him as good a working library as the Encyclopedia Britannica." A great English divine says: "If all other books were destroyed (the Bible excepted) the world would have lost but little of its information." Have you got it? Do you want it? If so, act at once before this offer is withdrawn. The RECORD'S traveling agent will be in town for a few days. Sample sets of these books are on exhibition at Y. M. C. A. building, 103 Calhoun St., Fort Wayne. Call and examine them while they are here, or cut this coupon out and mail it to THE SENTINEL at once.

COUPON OF INQUIRY

Regarding the RECORD'S

LIBERAL PROPOSITION.

Please advise me on what terms you furnish the new 30-volume edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica to RECORD subscribers. I should like to see sample pages of the work which show illustrations of the Library in natural colors.

SHOP AND RAIL.

The Pennsylvania Extending Its East Yards.

J. R. Sunderland, the Ex-Baggage Master, Returns to the City--Well Known Shopman Preparing to Marry.

This morning a large force of workmen began the task of rearranging and extending the railway yards in the eastern part of the city. Work began at a point sixty-five car lengths east of the Piqua road crossing, where it is proposed to put in two receiving tracks, and will continue westward until the entire yard has been rearranged and its facilities for handling trains greatly improved. This is a big contract, as the work must be accomplished without interferring with business. It will hardly be completed before the year 1898 is well advanced.

CAR SHOPS TO RESUME WORK.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 20.—The Brownell Car company, which went into liquidation July 25 and is temporarily in possession of Ford W. Thompson, as trustee, will be reorganized in a few days. The mill is in running order and the factory will resume operations by the first of the month, giving employment to 250 men. H. B. Joselyn, representing Mr. Brownell, speaking of the resumption said: "We have received assurances of large orders for cars from several of the large cities throughout the country. I think it is due to a return of prosperity."

AN IMMENSE MORTGAGE FILED.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—The proceedings of the meeting of the stockholders of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, held September 22, which authorized the issuance of a blanket mortgage and bonds to the amount of $185,000,000, were filed for record today. The purpose of the mortgage is to pay the outstanding obligations of the company in the aggregate principal sum of $114,343,000 and of its allied companies, the Winona and St. Peter and the Dakota Central railroads, amounting to $17,343,000. The bonds will be ninety-year bonds, payable November 1, 1997, bearing 5 per cent. interest, and will be underwritten by the United States Trust company, of New York, and John A. Stewart as trustees.

BRIEF MENTIONS.

Pittsburg Brakeman W. F. Cooper is on the sick list.

Nickel Plate Train Dispatcher F. W. Urbahns went to Chicago last night.

Wells, French & Co. are building one hundred refrigerator cars for the Santa Fe.

Ed Eix, of the Bass blacksmith shop, is detained at home by the illness of his wife.

Machinist Louis Seibt went to Anderson this morning to set a Bass upright engine in operation.

The Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton is now delivering daily at Toledo 200 to 225 carloads of Ohio coals.

The Ohio Falls car works are now very busy building both passenger and freight equipment, largely for southern lines.

Pennsylvania Train Dispatcher P. J. Raidy went to Chicago this morning, accompanied by his daughter, for a brief visit.

The meeting of the Machinists' union tonight will be followed by a social session and it is hoped the attendance will be large.

Foreman Hiram Poyser, of Wabash carpenters at this point, has returned from a visit with his daughter at Kansas City.

O. W. Lehman has recovered from injuries received by a bicycle collision and this morning resumed his place in the Pittsburg planing mills

John Elliott, the Vandalia conductor who was killed accidentally last Friday, carried a policy for $2,000 with the Order of Railway Conductors.

Last week, in one day, the Columbus and Hocking Valley delivered to lake vessels 9,218 tons of coal, it being transferred by a Brown hoisting machine.

The Brooks locomotive works have secured the order to build twenty ten-wheel freight engines for the Lake Shore road. The engine proper will weigh 108,000 pounds.

Anthony Rose has taken the position in the factory of the Anthony Wayne Manufacturing company, recently vacated by Ernest Jonard, who quit it to take a position as fireman on the Pittsburg road.

J. W. Sheldon, road foreman of engines on the Erie and Ashtabula division of the Pennsylvania system, was in the city over night, leaving this morning for the north on the Grand Rapids train.

The Central Vermont is about to be reorganized, the Grand Trunk having a voice in the reorganization. The Central Vermont turns over to the Grand Trunk annually a million dollars' worth of business.

James Geismar, of Van Wert Ohio, is visiting Charles Johnson, the oiler at the Pittsburg planing mills. Mr. Geismar is a harness maker and if he can secure employment at that trade, he will remain in the city permanently.

The disbursements of the Pennsylvania Voluntary Relief association during the month of September were in death benefits from accidents, $2,500; in death benefits from natural causes, $8,000; in disablement benefits from accident, $6,168 50; from sickness $5,754 40; making a grand total of $24,362.90 disbursed during the month to 931 members or, in case of death, their legal heirs.

Engineers and Mesdames William Gates, Chester Darnell, Peter Carter and William Torrence will go to Chicago this evening on Pennsylvania train No. 9 to attend the meetings of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and its auxiliary.

The earnings of the Northern Pacific are now so large that dividends on its common stock are predicted. The track of the road has been put in good condition and the rates are being maintained. The road never handled as large a tonnage as this fall.

Brakemen J. Hesslin and C. Vardeman, of the Nickel Plate, are off duty, the former on account of the sickness of his wife and the latter for a few days' rest. Brakeman F. Young, of the same road, reported for duty after being on the sick list a few days.

Engine 153, which has been recently rebuilt in the Nickel Plate shops at Stony Island, is again in the freight service on the Third district, with Engineer Bert Crosby at the throttle and Fireman John Hood at the scoop and pick. This engine is practically new, having been in the shops nearly three months.

Indianapolis Journal: "George Burns, private secretary of General Manager Ramsey, of the Wabash, and general fuel agent, was in the city yesterday. He states that the Wabash could hardly be doing any better than at the present time. Every engine and car fit for service is kept on the move."

Peru Journal: "In circuit court the case of John W. Young vs. the Wabash railroad company in which he asks $50,000 damages for being blacklisted, is at last up for trial before Judge Watkins and a jury after several years of waiting. Judge Hammond and Attorney Stuart, of Lafayette, are the leading representatives of the road."

Anthony Arnold and Clem Reid, two machinists who were suspended from the Bass works during the dull season of 1893, are back in their old positions. Mr. Arnold, since the date mentioned, had been working at the electric works and the shops of the Western Gas Construction company; also in the Arcade bicycle store. Mr. Reid spent the time he was absent from the shop upon his father's farm, west of the city. Both are good mechanics.

Joseph R. Sunderland is today moving his family and his household goods from the farm to the residence of his daughter, Mrs. W. A. Davis, 177 West DeWald street, where he and his wife will hereafter make their home. The many friends of the couple will welcome them back to the city. For many years Mr. Sunderland was the baggage-master at the Wabash depot and no man was better known to the citizens and the traveling men than he was a few years ago.

Within the next sixty days the farmers of Greene county can reach the railway stations with grain, produce and live stock about as well in the muddy road season as in midsummer. Already the Indianapolis and Vincennes has delivered 700 car loads of broken stone at points designated for improving the highways of Greene county, and under the contract 500 more carloads are to be delivered this month and in November, sixty miles of highway in that county being so improved.

Tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock will occur the marriage of John P. Schmit and Miss Susinia Rupp. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Schmit will leave for Cleveland, Ohio, where they will be the guests of the bride's brother, George Rupp, a few days. They will return here next Monday and be "at home" to their friends at No. 44 John street. Mr. Schmit is employed as a helper at Louis Rehling's fire, in the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, and is held in high esteem by his fellow workmen.

The Junior league of Simpson M. E. church will give an entertainment called "The Prohibition Shoe" one week from next Friday evening. An original program is to be given

The Eclipse Social club, a new organization of west side young men, will inaugurate their social season by giving a reception and ball at Schroder's hall this evening. A fine program has been arranged.

Mrs. O. H. Stone and A. A. Parker were guests at the Wayne last night for a few hours, having come here to meet Mrs. George M. Pullman, who was en route home from the east in response to a telegram announcing her husband's death. The party left at 5 o'clock this morning.

R. L. Romy and George F. Felts have purchased the David Lipes farm in Eel River and Lake townships and they went out to inspect their new purchase yesterday afternoon The farm consists of 362 acres, and is one of the largest single tracts in the county. They propose converting it into several farms and sell them.

J. C. Howenstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Howenstein, of West Wayne street, has gone to the mountain regions of North Carolina for the benefit of his health. The past four years he spent mostly in the south and seemed to be greatly benefited by it. A few months ago he returned home, thinking he could remain here, when his health began to fail, which made it necessary to go south again.

The Wabash Tribune says: "E. F. Yarnelle, of Fort Wayne, a brother of Will Yarnelle, of this city, delighted the assembly in the Presbyterian church Sunday night. Mr. Yarnelle also sang a solo at the Christian Endeavor meeting. Mr. Yarnelle has a clear voice, is a thorough master of it, and always delights his hearers. The entire audience hopes to again hear him sing in Wabash."

Nothing is so nerve-trying as a pair of "squeaky" shoes. To remedy the squeak stand the shoes in a tin plate covered with just enough turpentine to reach the line of the inner sole without touching the upper leather. Let it soak for a day and then dry for two days before wearing, when it will be found that the soles are not only noiseless, but waterproof, and will wear almost twice as long. The turpentine seems to harden the leather without stiffening it.

Christian Cleaver, a farmer residing seven miles south of the city on the Piqua road, was in the city last evening and in exchanging views on the subject of horses with James B. Shoaff, he stated that he had a family horse that had been on his farm thirty-eight years. The animal was reared by him and had done good service up to a few years ago. The oldest horse that has come to the notice of equine trainers in this vicinity was thirty-three years old. Mr. Cleaver says that his old favorite will probably reach its fortieth birthday anniversary, but doubts if life can be prolonged much beyond that.

A QUESTION.

County Commissioners Are Presented With a Knotty One.

The Late John Orff Said to Have Qualified for Office--Stellhorn May Hold Over.

A question involving some intricacies of law has been brought to the front by the death of John Orff, county commissioner-elect. There is little reason to doubt that about the first of the present month Mr. Orff complied with the formalities as the law prescribes for the qualification of a commissioner. No bond is required of a commissioner and he receives no commission from the governor of the state, as in the case of all other county officers. No more is necessary than that he obtain from the county clerk his certificate of election, deposit it with the county auditor and take the oath of office, which may be taken before any person competent to administer the legal oath. Mr. Orff is believed to have done these things.

The question now is whether these formalities constitute complete qualification or whether qualification could only be complete upon the expiration of the predecessor's term. The law says a county commissioner shall hold office for a term of three years, or until a successor has been elected and qualified. Had Mr. Orff fully qualified? If it is held that he had, then a successor will to be elected in the manner prescribed by law to hold the office until the next general election. If it is held that he had not fully qualified then Commissioner Stellhorn will hold over in accordance with the law.

The commissioners refuse to discuss the successorship or candidates for the place. Commissioner Stellhorn is frequently mentioned as is Mr. C. E. Orff, son of the late John Orff.

HEART FAILURE

Claims Mrs. Elizabeth Tonne With Only Slight Warning.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Frech Lose a Child--Obsequies of Mr. Orff--The Deaths and Funerals.

At 2:30 o'clock this morning Mrs. Elizabeth Tonne, wife of Julius Tonne, foreman at the Fort Wayne Foundry and Machine company, died suddenly at her home, 524 East Wayne street, of heart failure, as a result of typhoid fever. Mrs. Tonne had recently recovered from typhoid and her constitution was so weakened by the disease that the heart action was irregular, causing death to come quickly and without much warning. Deceased was born in Germany. Her age was forty-five years, nine months and two days.

BABY FRECH.

Louis, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Frech, of 9 Romy avenue, died last night of flux, aged one year and six months. George Frech, the lad who was murdered a year ago, was a son of the bereaved parents.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS.

The funeral of Mrs. John Lassus was held from the Cathedral this morning and was very largely attended. Many French residents from all parts of the county came to attend the obsequies, as the family is well known.

Eva, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Van Meter, of Home avenue, died this morning of typhoid fever. Her age was fifteen years, four months and seventeen days.

The funeral of Miss Susan Rhinesmith will take place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence.

HAPPILY WEDDED.

Fort Wayneites Attended a Wedding at Garrett.

Fisher-McCarthy Nuptials--Marriage of Charles Paul and Miss Amelia Ortlieb This Evening.

Frank W. Fisher was married to Miss Loretta McCarthy at Garrett, Ind., last Tuesday morning, the ceremony being performed in the St. Peter's Catholic church. E. A. Vogeding and Miss Nellie Carl, of this city, attended the bridal couple. The church was filled with friends and after the knot was tied a large number repaired to the home of the bride, where a reception was held. Mr. Fisher and his bride are both well known in Fort Wayne. Upon their departure on a wedding trip rice was showered around them in great quantities.

PAUL-ORTLIEB.

This evening Charles Paul and Miss Amelia Ortlieb will be married at the St. Paul's Lutheran church. After the ceremony a reception will be held at the residence of the bride's father, on West Jefferson street. The contracting parties are popular and congratulations will come from all sides.

KROEMER-NEES.

Yesterday afternoon, at St. Paul's Lutheran church, occurred the wedding of Henry Kroemer to Miss Elizabeth Nees. A reception was given at the bride's home, at 28 Shick street, in the evening.

LYNCH-CLARK.

This morning, at St. Patricks Catholic church, was solemnized the marriage of John Lynch to Miss Clara B. Clark, the Rev. Father Delaney performing the ceremony. A reception will be held at the new home of the bridal couple, on Brandriff street, this evening.

DEWITT-CUMMINS.

At the Wayne street Methodist parsonage, by Rev. Henry W. Bennett, Tuesday, Oct. 19, Richard E. Dewitt was married to Miss Ethyl A. Cummins.

ANIMALS PERISH.

Lively Blaze on Montgomery Street Early This Morning---Barns Burned.

At 2 o'clock this morning the fire department made a run to the premises at 92, 94 and 96 Montgomery street, where four barns were burning. The structures were totally destroyed. Mr. Bennett, of Larwill, and John Gaetje, of this city, owned the property. William Lindeman, a stone cutter, occupied one of the lots, and he sustained a loss of a lot of hay and feed. The horse confined in the barn was rescued by Captain Borgman. A number of fowls and a watch dog were cremated. The loss to the owners of the property will be about $800.

Lord Lonsdale as a Driver.

Lord Lonsdale is master of the most fashionable pack of foxhounds in England. It is no easy task to control a field which may number 700 horsemen and horsewomen, but Lonsdale did it so well that when he wished to resign the mastership the hunt guaranteed a largely increased subscription to enable him to meet the annually swelling expense of hunting the country. A performance of Lord Lonsdale's which excited great interest at the time was the driving match he arranged with Lord Shrewsbury in March, 1894. Lord Shrewsbury, owing to a misapprehension, did not come to the starting post. Lord Lonsdale did, and performed the truly remarkable feat of driving (1) a single horse, (2) a pair, (3) a four-in-hand and (4) a pair, riding postilion five miles each over a bad stretch of road in 55 minutes 35 4-5 seconds, or 20 miles in 56 minutes 55 4-5 seconds, including changes of vehicle.

English Soldiers Versus Civi ians.

In Great Britain the position of the private soldier has one advantage over all other trades. At the age of 39 he can retire on a pension of from 56 cents to $1.12 a day. There is no business that secures such a provision for a workingman.

PROTECT AGAINST DISEASE.

I have practiced medicine here for forty-five years and the last ten years have studied how to prevent disease, and have learned that medicine that will cure a disease will prevent it; what will prevent, will cure. This is a law of nature. It generally takes nine days to prevent, and from six to nine to cure. These five infections and contagious diseases can generally be prevented, and cured, at least eighty per cent. of them: Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever, Whooping Cough, Measles and Small Pox.
Medicines can be sent by mail with plain printed directions, and the expense for either prescription will be only One Dollar and three 2-cent postage stamps.

NO AGREEMENT

Is the Probable Outcome of the Lastgeret Trial.

Juror Harley is the Most Obstinate.

He Strongly Holds Out for Acquittal.

Judge Tuthill Issues Upon a Verdict and Will Not Receive the Jury Until They Agree.

CRIMINAL COURT BUILDING, Chicago, Oct. 20.—Judge Tuthill called the jury into court at 10:30 this morning. From a neighboring window Juror Harley was seen shaking hands with the other jurors and it was then believed a verdict had been reached. Ten minutes later the Judge sent for the prisoner and Lastgeret was taken up the back elevator in the building and into court. This meeting turned out to have been sought by some of the members of the jury, and the facts concerning it are thus given by State's Attorney Deneen:

"I was in my office this morning," said Mr. Deneen, "when I was informed that my presence was desired in the court room and that the Lastgeret jury had a report or something of that nature to make to the judge. Judge Tuthill, ex-Judge Vincent and Attorney Phalen had been notified and were in the court room when I reached it. Lastgeret was sent for and came into court cool and smiling. Then the jury was brought in. It was apparent at once who had been holding the jury." The state's attorney continued: "Judge Tuthill inquired if the jury had any communication to make. Juror Harley was on his feet in a jiffy and began asking questions. He desired instruction in questions of fact. Harley wanted to know if it was possible to leave out certain evidence altogether, exclude it entirely, and then consider the other evidence and make up a verdict from it. This query excited the laugh of those who were opposed to Harley, and it was noticeable that nine of the jurors laughed. Judge Tuthill replied that the question was an improper one for him to answer. 'You have your instructions,' said his honor. 'Note the reading of them. You will find that nearly all of them contain the language, 'and if after consideration of all the evidence you find beyond a reasonable doubt,' etc. That should be sufficient.' The court cannot now instruct you upon a question of fact. You will retire to your jury room and return to further consideration of the case.' That was all that occurred. Several of the jurors wanted to know how much longer they were going to be kept in the jury room. Judge Tuthill paid no attention to the inquiry. Juror Harley is the man who is holding the jury. He now has two adherents. They are Jurors Hubbard and Schmaller, but both of these I believe are weakening. It looks to me now as though there will be a disagreement. I believe that before night the jury will stand eleven to one and that the only man who will be able to break a disagreement will be Harley. Judge Tuthill is determined the jury shall have ample time to consider all the evidence in the case and he will not discharge them before tonight or tomorrow."

The same arrangements that were made yesterday with regard to the reception of a verdict prevailed today. Judge Tuthill left the criminal court building immediately after the scene in the court room. He went to his home on Jackson boulevard and it was agreed that he should be notified at once in case the jury signified that a verdict had been reached.

Ex-Judge Vincent and Attorney Phalen went to their offices down town and kept in touch with telephone communication all day.

Before he left the building Judge Tuthill intimated to the counsel in the case that he might return late in the afternoon or this evening and call the jury before him to ask if there was any indication of probability of a verdict being reached. Judge Tuthill also hinted that if the reply indicated even that there was the slightest chance for a verdict, back the jury would go and remain the balance of the week unless a verdict was handed into court in the meantime.

When Lastgeret walked into Judge Tuthill's court room this morning he believed a verdict had been reached. He also believed that he had been acquitted. With a smile on his face he walked up to ex-Judge Vincent and Attorney Phalen and warmly shook each of them by the hand. Then turning towards State Attorney Deneen he grasped the small hand of the states attorney in his monster palm and exclaimed: "Well, Mr Deneen I am glad it is all over. You gave me a terrible tongue lashing the last day but you were fair. You did not go outside the evidence."

State's Attorney Deneen shook the hand of the giant German, smiled, and bowed but said nothing.

LASTGERET BELIEVES IN A DISAGREEMENT.

Lastgeret was returned to the jail a few minutes after 11 o'clock. As he passed down the corridor to his cell he was piled with questions from a dozen reporters. His demeanor implied that he had heard nothing bad. "They did not do anything in there" he said. "They sent for me and said I had to be in court when anything of the kind went on. I went in but they did not do a thing. It is a disagreement sure," said the noted prisoner as he walked springingly into his cell.

It is rumored that Judge Tuthill this morning opened three letters offering bribes to the jury. This report cannot be verified as the judge and those connected with the trial are absolutely inaccessible.

THE JURY'S STANDING.

State's Attorney Deneen explained this afternoon that he based his opinion as to the probable standing of the jury late this afternoon at eleven for conviction to one for acquittal upon a question asked during the conference this morning. The question was asked by Juror Harley and was, "If eleven jurors should vote for conviction and one for acquittal can the majority compel the minority to change his vote?" Judge Tuthill refused to answer the question. States Attorney Deneen said he did not desire the impression to get abroad that he knew any more about the probable action of the jury than any one else, but the manner in which the question was put in the court room led him to the conclusion that before night the jury would stand at the figures indicated.

The longest discussion the jury has yet had took place soon after the jurors had finished their midday meal. A court bailiff remarked that the talk was warm and that half a dozen of the jurors were talking at once. The report of the wrangle interested the waiting friends of Lastgeret and also the state's attorney. Results are expected from the discussion. Nothing but a disagreement can be hoped for from stubborn silence.

CAPITALISM IN THE JURY ROOM.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—The court room of Judge Tuthill, before whom the Lastgeret case was tried, is the scene of vandalism that has no parallel in the annals of sensational trials. Certain of the spectators took advantage of the absence of the bailiffs and Clerk Knoch and seized on every portable article of stationery. Sections of the interwoven desks used by the newspaper reporters during the tedious ordeal were even carried off by the morbid crowd. Fearing that the relic-hunters would grow desperate and demolish the fixtures a policeman was detailed inside the bar. The few ornaments which remained after the chamber had been abandoned were hastily removed across the hallway.

The gavel which Judge Tuthill has wielded to keep the feminine section of the attendance seated has disappeared. Clerk Knoch had hoped to secure the reverend mallet, with an autograph of the presiding judge on the handle, for his club and was sorely disappointed. So here was Judge Tuthill's desk of court materials that had the jury returned and he been summoned to receive their finding he would have had to send to a neighboring drug store for paper and writing apparatus. During a temporary absence of the judge and clerk the bailiffs at the door relaxed their vigilance and went to a room above the jury's quarters.

While they were gone the sections of the long window writing benches were removed. These were cut in squares of a foot, so that they might be hidden under an overcoat without exciting suspicion should any of the wardens be encountered.

When Clerk Knoch returned he took means to discover further attempts on the part of the souvenir hunters. The drawers of Judge Tuthill's desk were unlocked and the books and papers removed to Judge Horton's chambers. Electric light bulbs and globes were securely fastened so that they could not be made away with by the resolutely inclined. A guard was instructed to watch the furniture and window sashes and arrest anybody who tried to leave his initials in the pillars.

Visitors to the court room are now closely watched by the bailiffs and special guard behind the rail of the court's bench. The top of that piece of furniture was as bare as if a hurricane had swept across the room. Any attempt to get inside the rail, except by persons known to the custodians of the place is fruitless.

Judge Tuthill, in the course of his frequent communications with the court room by telephone, is quizzed after his gavel and intimated. He said he was particularly anxious to keep both as mementoes for his wife. When he was told that all the small articles were gone he expressed himself in vigorous and

ANGRY AT M'KINLEY.

Endorsement of Tracy by the Democratic State Committee Considered a Blow—Butterworth Secured for Having Talked Too Freely.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The republican friends of President McKinley who favor the candidacy of Seth Low for mayor are furious because Benjamin Butterworth, commissioner of immigration, was allowed to come to Brooklyn to speak for General Tracy. They are particularly incensed at Butterworth for committing the administration to Tracy's candidacy and for giving the impression in a hunting way that he had been commissioned by the president to do so.

The part of Butterworth's speech that has led to the most severe censure of the administration was the following statement which he made at a dinner at the Union League club in Brooklyn after the Clermont avenue rink meeting:

"On the evening of the 31st of November a telegraphic message will be anxiously awaited in the white house. President McKinley said to me night before last: 'Ohio, you know how earnestly I feel in regard to the triumph of the republican party in Greater New York.'"

When shown this quotation in Washington yesterday President McKinley refused to make any statement with reference to it. Private Secretary Porter, with a fine show of frankness, said the president had determined not to interfere in the Greater New York campaign. Republicans assume, however, that the president had been put on record for General Tracy as squarely as if he had made a speech for him.

BICYCLE EVENT.

Starbuck and Michael Up for a Race.

Will Decide the Middle Distance Championship in a Contest on Thanksgiving Again.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—Frank J. Starbuck and Jimmy Michael, the middle distance bicycle riders, have been matched to race twenty-five miles, paced, at Madison Square Garden, New York, on Thanksgiving night. The pacemaking will be done with tandem teams, the number of which is limited to twelve teams, one each side. The terms of the race are that Michael is to get a guarantee of $1,000 and Starbuck gets a guarantee of $600 and 15 per cent. of the gross receipts over that amount. Starbuck is under suspension, but notwithstanding that fact, will commence training for the race at once. It is understood that in order to get the Philadelphian out of his difficulty with the League of American Wheelmen, the New York promoters will pay the claims of the pacemakers in the Lenox race. Starbuck was suspended indefinitely by L. A. W. Chairman Mott, for failing to pay the men who acted as his pacemakers in the race with Lenox, the Swiss champion.

QUART SHOP WRECKED.

Explosion Sets the Dynamite on a Grocer's Quest and Salmon.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 20.—A "quart" shop at Greenwood, owned and operated by Patrick Murphy, of this city, gave the villagers much offense, and early yesterday a charge of dynamite was placed under the building and the structure and contents were scattered broadcast.

Charles Stevens, bartender, and John Devers, a companion, sleeping in a rear room, were thrown into the street and severely hurt. The force of the explosion broke every window pane in adjoining residences, and aroused every villager.

Recently there has been much lawlessness in Greenwood after nightfall, the blame for which was placed upon the "quart" shop.

BICYCLE THIEF.

Sheriff Melching Holding a Man for Bottle Creek Officers.

C. H. Watkins is the name of a young man held in the county jail by Sheriff Melching to await the arrival of officers from Battle Creek, Mich.

The fellow was in New Haven yesterday afternoon and professed to be an officer in pursuit of horse thieves. He rode a bicycle and had a revolver and a pair of beautiful handcuffs of modern pattern. Marshal Grabner arrested the man on suspicion and wired Sheriff Melching for instructions.

The sheriff telephoned that the man be held and he proceeded at once to New Haven. He recognized the bicycle as one advertised to have been stolen at Battle Creek and brought the man to Fort Wayne.

The wheel is unquestionably the one stolen in Michigan and the Battle Creek officers have wired in response to Sheriff Melching that an officer will be here today for the man. Watkins is believed to be a high-class crook.

Wiseman will be practiced at Yales, and Mr. Wiseman, who is still alive, will be present at the service. He states that it is his desire to know just what kind of a man he is before he dies, and he has instructed the minister to deliver the same sermon he would in case he was actually dead. Rev Mr. Ireland has consented to perform the service, and Mr. Wiseman has invited his relatives, friends and congregation to attend.

NEW YORK NEWS.

Much of the Old Fervor From the Efforts of the Greater New York on the Home Voters.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Politicians of all sorts are greatly interested in the probable effect of the bitterness displayed in municipal politics upon the results in the state at large. The efforts principally discussed are those affecting the chances of Wallace and Parker, respectively the republican and democratic nominees for chief judge of the court of appeals and those of the legislative candidates individually. It is conceded that the bitterness developed between the partisans of Low and Tracy, if not stronger than that between George and Tammany, is in some evidence and likely to be more widespread in its results.

Straight democrats claim, though they can give no substantial basis for their assertion, that Parker will run so far ahead of Wallace in Greater New York as to secure his election. Already there are charges of trading in legislative candidates and the length and complexity of the ballots cannot fail to confuse the more illiterate voters. Democratic fires are beginning to commence upon the bolting of the George vote by leaders of the regular parties and recall to attention the vote of 1886, in which the single tax received more than 45,000 votes, when before election no one would concede a third of that total. The desertion the conservatives made in that election will suppress the prominence of 1897 as he correspondent chose of 1896. The straight republicans are leaving no means untried to make the mass meeting at Lenox lyceum tonight noteworthy for attendance and influence. Secretary of the Interior Bliss will preside. General Tracy and Governor Black will speak and arrangements for overflow meetings have been perfected. Richard Croker is credited with the prediction that Van Wyck will have a plurality of 75,000 and 80,000 is "safe to bet on." Meanwhile there is no talk of wagers and odds that is usual this since betting is supposed to have begun and the actual placing of money has not as yet begun to any marked extent.

FELL THIRTY FEET.

Charles Kramer, Jr., Falls From a Hay Mow.

Charles Kramer, jr., a young man twenty three years old, who lives with his father on a farm just north of Robison park, fell from a hay mow last evening and received injuries which are very serious and may cripple him for life. Young Mr. Kramer was helping his father pitch hay from a mow in the big barn, when he lost his balance and fell a distance of thirty feet. He was rendered unconscious by the fall. Dr. Carl Schilling, who was summoned, found that the man had sustained a compound fracture of the left leg and the right ankle was badly sprained. It will be several months before the unfortunate young man will be able to be around again and he may be permanently crippled.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON

Preached on Hope and Life to Eight Hundred Convicts.

The Grand Actor Solemnly Told Men That Night Make Men of Themselves—The Solitary Shepherd.

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Eight hundred convicts, virtual in gray sat in the chapel of the state prison at Charlestown Sunday. To that strange audience, impatient but silent, entered Rip Van Winkle—Joseph Jefferson.

The actor, at whose bidding tens of thousands have laughed or wept, was there to preach hope to these hundreds almost hopeless. He had come to remind them that they could make men of themselves; they could begin life anew.

Chaplain Barnes, of the prison, had invited Jefferson. But his was an unlikely worldly success. He knows that strong drink kills the prisoner. So he preached temperance. But the word "temperance" he did not utter.

With Jefferson was his little grandson and some men devoted to prison work. Chaplain Barnes prayed. Then the prisoners sang a hymn. As their voices rose in a gruff chorus Jefferson seemed much affected. Then the man of supreme art arrlessly told of an adventure of his that bore its own moral.

He was hunting in Australia years ago. He had left his "home station," galloped twenty miles and disappointed to cut his track. And deadly a flock of cockatoos flew by him, soared. Then he went on.

Just at that moment a large black collie dog came bounding out of the bushes and suddenly stopped in front of me. For a moment I was startled. The dog paused, eyed me keenly, then, coming slowly up, walked around me, and at last approached and licked my hand, which I had held out to him. He then ran away.

"I have never seen a dog act in so singular a manner and was wonder ing what it could mean, when a sharp, joyful bark warned me that he was returning, and, sure enough, he had come back, wagging his tail and followed by the gaunt figure of a man, thinly clad, barefooted and with a wide brimmed frayed straw hat on his head. He was about fifty years of age, and as he removed his hat and made me a well mannered, dignified bow, I could see that though it was undoubtedly a shepherd, he had once been a gentleman.

"As he stood bareheaded before me the wind blew his long, thin, sandy hair about his brow and he regarded me with a strange, far off look in his eyes. I met several shepherds after this and noticed that same strained expression. They live so much alone—sometimes even three or four months without seeing a human being, that they form this habit of looking over the plains, hoping that they may catch sight of some one to relieve the awful monotony of their lives.

"The man sat down quietly beside me and ate sparingly and rather mechanically of the lunch, always sharing his morsel with Jack, his dog. I took out a flask of whiskey, and pouring out some of it into a cup, offered my guest a drink. His eyes beamed with a longing look as he saw the liquor, and, turning on me a strange, frightened look, said: 'No; none of that. Put it away please. I don't like the sight of it.'

"I rose to make my departure, when he said: 'You won't go to night, will you? It's too late. I wish you'd stay in my hut tonight. It's so long since I have seen a human face—over three months—a man only comes once in a great while to bring provisions, and that is all we see of humanity from one year's end to the other. Do stay tonight, won't you?'

"I did like to oblige you, I replied, but they will be uneasy about me at the home station."

"'Oh, no,' I replied.

"The poor fellow hung his head and looked the picture of despair.

"'How far is the hut?' I asked.

"'Only a mile or so, I assure you.'

"I agreed to go to it, so he started off at a good pace, fearing I might change my mind, I suppose. The dog ran ahead, barking, and I followed on horseback. We soon came upon his hut. It was built of mud, sticks and straw, with hard earth for a floor. The shepherd prepared a cup of tea—the usual beverage of the bush.

"The sun had gone down behind the low horizon with the same effect that it does at sea. As we sat outside, upon a couple of rude blocks of wood, drinking our refreshing tea, the moon rose up, absolutely its soft light over this mysterious scene; there was no sound but the distant tinkle of a sheep's bell and the crackling of the little fire that was boiling the tea. The smoke went up straight and silently into the still air. The loneliness was had enough with two men, what must it have been with one?

"I questioned him about his past life. It seems he had been educated at Eton. Then he became a fast youth in London, where he ran through the law, and in a short time was ruined by a successful barrister. He had married early, and had one child, a daughter, born to him. After ten years of well bed life he had his wife and child. Despairing, he took to drink and, in his

Seven Negro Prisoners Have a Narrow Escape.

MARION, Ill., Oct. 20.—Sheriff Parks, of Williamson county, and a deputy arrived today from Carterville with seven Indians to be placed in the Massac county jail for safety from an infuriated mob of 150 men. The Indians, it is charged, murdered a Mr. Young Saturday night near Carterville. Initially stabbing out his brains and brawls, while George Columbia, it is alleged cut the poor victim's throat out with a butcher knife. They will be held here until next Monday.

DESERVED TRIBUTE

Resolutions Pending Him Words as a Citizen Adopted by the Officers of Allen County.

This afternoon the officers of Allen county met in the circuit court room and listened to the reports of the committee appointed yesterday to take appropriate action on the death of the late John Orff, commissioner elect of Allen county. The committee on resolutions, through its chairman, Prosecuting Attorney N. D. Loughman, reported the following

RESOLUTIONS

WHEREAS, By the death of John Orff a valued citizen is taken away. A resident of this county for more than fifty years, for more than fifty years actively engaged in business pursuits here in our midst, we have learned to look upon him as one of the landmarks of the place. Honest and fair in all his dealings, the name of John Orff had become the synonym with his fellows for honor and uprightness. Of him it could truly said his word was as good as his bond and his bond as good as the government's.

Selected often to be a servant of the people, he declined always, feeling that he could serve better as a private than as an officer, and that career of public office would not harmonize with the duties of his business, to his family and to society. Once persuaded at last, he consented to sacrifice his own feelings and to stand as candidate of the people for one of the most important offices—county commissioner. Most heartily did the people accept the sacrifice offered.

Without a word of comment, except of commendation, he received the highest vote of any candidate on the ticket. He was gratified and the people without regard to party were satisfied with his honor.

The honor was sown enough for him but too late for the people who wanted his services. Before he could become the people's servant death summoned him home.

Full of years, full of honor, full of the love and respect of his fellows, he has shaken the dust from his garments and gone up higher, and the people mourn their loss.

We, the public servants of Allen county, join our grief with that of the people. To us the loss seems greater than to others for we had anticipated many years of co-work with this good, true and honored man.

BE IT RESOLVED, That we, the officers of Allen county, attend the funeral of John Orff in a body.

That these resolutions be spread of record in the records of the commissioners of Allen county and that the auditor furnish the family of John Orff with a copy of the same.

That the court house be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days.

N. D. LOUGHMAN,
THOMAS GRIMM, SR.,
L. J. BOBAY.

October 20, 1897.

The resolutions were adopted unanimously. The report of the funeral committee was received after which the meeting adjourned and the officers proceeded in a body by special street car to the residence of the deceased to attend the funeral.

QUEER DECREE.

A Chicago Justice Who Has a Practical Head.

Solves a Row Between Husband and Wife Over the Ownership of Being Held in the Grand Jury.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Whether to risk being held to the grand jury on a charge of assault, or to part with a portion of his estimable, so that his victim may benefit by a skin grafting operation is the alternative which faces Paul Overt, a boy of fourteen years, who threw hot water into Sadie Knicke, scalding her so severely that an operation is made imperative. In Justice Sabath's court the boy was given his choice of the two evils and allowed until October 25 to consider the proposition.

Lord Salisbury Makes a Speech Making Conditions Unusual.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon, during the course of a long article on American competition in the iron and steel industries, says:

"Today we find the United States not only challenging our supremacy in neutral markets, but even obtaining a foothold in England. The causes which are giving the United States such a formidable position are permanent and everything points to the United States remaining the cheapest steel producing country in the world."

STATE WINS.

Jury Finds Against Frank Ivey and Policy Gamers.

The Case Appealed to the Circuit Court—Prosecutor Deughman Talks About Privacy.

A few minutes past 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the jury in the policy case against Frank Ivey returned to the council chamber in charge of Lieutenant Lapp. Shortly after 5 o'clock they agreed upon a verdict, finding the defendant guilty and imposing a fine of $10 and costs. The case was appealed to the circuit court by the defendants at request. Henry Colerick and Will Ryan.

The proceedings yesterday started out with evidence introduced by the state. Several witnesses were examined, but only one of them, Edward Kerns, gave evidence that was material. He is a better in the employ of Eli Nichols. He testified that he had purchased tickets from the defendant and on one occasion had made a small winning.

Eli Nichols, Charles Thieme, Mat Menger, A. J. Morrison and Joseph Oilen were examined. Mr. Thieme stated that he and other firemen at the Central engine house had purchased policy tickets at Old Bob's grocery, which was a subsection of the distribution. Mr. Oilen swore that he never had anything to do with policy men, had never bought or sold any tickets. Mr. Morrison testified to having seen agents sell policy tickets in barber shops, but could not identify Ivey as the person so engaged.

Prosecutor Deughman made a strong argument. He read the law bearing on the case and denounced the policy game as a "poor man's gambling scheme," making it all the more dangerous. He said that evidence sufficient to convict had been secured and that anybody could easily see that many witnesses never to box. They were guilty of perjury, he said, and he intimated that the state would lay the matter before the grand jury.

The argument of the defense was on the line that no case had been made against Ivey because the state had not shown that there was any game of chance and the evidence failed to show that Ivey was connected with the game. Mr. Colerick attacked the validity of the affidavit, stating that it was imperfect in that it was not specific in its charges.

The jury on the first ballot stood 11 to 1 for conviction, and the succeeding ballots were the same up to a verdict.

MAY APPEAL IT.

It is believed that Mr. Ivey's case will never come to trial in the circuit court. Today he was being counseled by some of his friends to walk up and pay the fine without further trouble.

MANY CONSUMERS

Added to the List of the Fort Wayne Gas Company.

Nearly Three Miles of New Mains This Summer—Preparing Engines to be Tested the Coming Week.

Three hundred more consumers will use natural gas this year, making a total of 7,000 on the books of the Fort Wayne Gas company. Superintendent Max Hoffman stated to a SENTINEL reporter that the extension for this year would be completed by next Saturday.

"We have laid three miles of pipe this year," he said, "and this will give several hundred families an opportunity of using gas next winter for the first time. We will be in better shape to furnish gas next winter than ever before because we will have our pumping station at Bluffton in operation whenever it becomes necessary to force the gas by artificial means. We will test the pumps some time next week to discover what the best results will be."

The extensions this year were on the following streets: Warner, Furman, East Washington, Glasgow avenue, Force, South Wayne avenue, Oothaus avenue, Runion avenue, and several others.

BRUTAL HUSBAND.

Herman Shula Arraigned Before the Mayor and Fined.

Was Unable to Give Bail—Two Bonds, Sureties and Money, Amounting to $100 Forthcoming.

This morning upon a warrant sworn to by Humane Officer Schlandroff, Herman Shula, who resides at 35 Will street, was arraigned by Officer Greer on the charge of cruelly treating his wife. It is alleged that Shula went home last night and asked his wife to consent to accompany him to the Turner's ball and when she gave good reasons for not being able to do so he took a rope and threatened violence. The humane officer was notified that Shula had come home frequently in a partly intoxicated condition, at such times being abusive to his family, even going so far as to threaten to murder all of them and this could be seen from his features.

Shula was taken to the mayor and was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $15.50 which he paid. He was warned to conduct himself properly in the future or stand the consequences.

TWO RAN OVER.

George Goodman and Daniel Hickey, of this city, boarded a freight train at Van Wert last night and told the conductor to keep his mouth shut and he would not get into trouble. They proposed to ride to Fort Wayne, they said, if they had to pinch the conductor of the train to do it. They rode, but when the train pulled into the yards here a policeman was on hand to meet them, having been notified by telegram. They accompanied the officer peacefully but threatened the conductor with a good beating the first opportunity that came along. Goodman and Hickey were sent to jail for twenty days.

OTHER COURTS.

Two train jumpers were let go.

JOHN J. WHITE

Notice of the Deceased Worthiest Petitions for His Appointment Either Sons of the Courts.

The late James B. White died without leaving a will and his large estate will be apportioned among the heirs in the manner prescribed by law. The affairs of the estate will be administered by the capable hands of the eldest son, John W. White, president of the White National bank who was this morning appointed administrator by Judge O'Rourke, of the circuit court. A petition was presented to Judge O'Rourke praying for the appointment of John W. White as administrator of the estate. The petition was signed by Maria White, widow of the deceased; Edward White, Grace M. White, James B. White, jr., and A. B. White, children of the deceased, all being his heirs at law. In his application for an administrator John W. White states that the deceased left a personal estate of the probable value of $50,000. The bond approved by the court is made in the sum of $75,000 and is signed by John W. White, Maria White, Edward White and R. L. Rosey as sureties.

MAY GO TO COURT.

Charles Page says His Land is Being Undervalued.

He says he Will Leave Into Litigation Before He Will Accept an Unsatisfactory Figure.

There appears to be a cloud rising on one side of the horizon which surrounds the land the city talks of condemning for waterworks purposes. Charles Page thinks he has substantial reason to believe that the appraisers appointed to appraise his land have put a price on it that will be far below its value for the purpose it is to be used for, and if this turns out to be the case when the commissioners make known the result of their investigation, he may go to the courts. He states emphatically that he will do so.

"I will fight this to a finish," said Mr. Page, "if it becomes necessary to do so. I put a price of $1,250 an acre on eight acres of it from the cleared ground. But if two acres of the eight are taken from less valuable ground on the other side of the road I ask $1,000 an acre. These prices are fair. The city should place a value on this land, not what it is worth as barren soil, but what it is to be worth for the purposes it will be put to. I am making no threats, but if what I hear is true the commissioners will place a figure away below the value I place upon the land, and if the city tries to condemn it at such figures I will resist it in the courts at once."

It was a large and merry throng that enjoyed the free hospitality of Mr and Mrs. C. S. Beals at their country home last evening. About one hundred invitations were issued and nearly all were present. Mr. Beals had retained the Abate band of sixteen pieces and good music was not lacking. In the early part of the evening refreshments were served and later old fashioned dances were indulged in.

THE party before whom the policy case was tried in Mayor Schoen's court last week threw their self respect and indignation to the winds and refused to be insulted. They were fined $1 each and costs, which amounted to $5.50 each. Had they stood on their rights and refused to pay the fine and costs, they would have been locked up in the city prison for ten days. Their refusal to pay would have been a contempt of court, and the mayor would have had the power to commit them to jail for ten days. Instead of doing this, he let them go, and they paid the fine and costs. Their self respect was worth $11 to them.

SENATOR FAULKNER is one of the few politicians in the country who can go before the people with a clean record. He has served many years in the house, a state convention or two, was a member of the national committee for four years, was speaker of the house for two years in succession, and was in connection with the nomination of Chief Justice Chase was conspicuously "conventional" by the democrats just prior to the convention which put up Seymour and Blair. He framed a few votes in the liberal republican convention of 1872. In 1880, before he went to the supreme bench, he was a prominent aspirant for the candidacy in the convention which nominated Lowden. Then Chase has the distinction not accorded to any other man of being prominently "mentioned" for the presidential nomination by three parties—John M. Lean, who was on the supreme bench from the beginning of Jackson's service in the presidency to the beginning of Lincoln's, had his name coupled with the candidacy in several conventions of two parties, the whig and the republican.

AT the request of the legislative council for the department of the senate, the prefect of police has just issued an order to all the barrooms of Paris containing instructions as to the measure to be taken for guarding against those diseases which are likely to be spread by the exercise of their trade. First of all, all metal instruments are to be plunged directly after use into a vessel of soapy water which has been boiling for at least ten minutes. All combs of fortoise shell, ivory, celluloid or buffalo horn are to be replaced as far as possible by metal ones, so that they may more easily be cleansed and disinfected; scissors, razors, clippers and brushes are to be kept in a stove heated to 100 degrees C., or in a closed receptacle in the lower part of which is a solution containing formaldehyde and sodium chloride in the proportion of fifty grammes of the former to 200 of the latter. Before use, shaving brushes must be dipped into boiling water, and instead of powder puffs, blower pulverizers are to be used. Finally, all barbers must wash their hands before passing from one customer to another, and after anyone has had his hair cut, damp sand is to be sprinkled on the floor so that the hair may be swept up and burnt at the end of the day. The hairdressers have protested against this order, which they declare to be quite impracticable in their trade.

The grand Lighter past, Tom Moore, during his 11 days' stay in England, like a number of other English writers on a trade and abuse of America and Americans. How deeply he regretted this folly is seen in a letter recently published, in which he said: "This life is just long enough to commit errors in, but too short to allow us time to repair them, as I there are few of my errors I regret more sincerely than the rashness I was guilty of in publishing those rude and hostile tirades against the Americans. My sentiments, both with respect to the national and individual character, are much changed since then, and I should blush, as a lover of liberty, if I allowed the hasty prejudice of my youth to blind me now to the bright light in which American affords of a better and happier order than the world has ever yet witnessed. If you can but continue to be a good republicans as we of Europe seem determined to be good royalists, the new and old world need soon have no other distinction than the hemisphere of freedom and the hemisphere of slaves."

IT is difficult to understand why the honest and intelligent citizens of New York do not apply to their politics the same good sense they apply to their business concerns. Under their new charter the new municipal corporation will have millions upon millions of revenues to collect and disburse and the opportunity for bribery, corruption and stealing will be unprecedented, if an unscrupulous political organization be elevated to power. The political party that triumphs may so firmly entrench itself and construct a machine so perfect and so powerful that it may bid defiance to the public. Tammany sees this and is hungry for the long record in the spoils that is promised. That now it and he yearns for the mastership it will give him in politics. Some wise citizens also see it and, taking counsel of the situation, they have organized a movement to keep Greater New York from falling into the hands of the spoilsmen. They have nominated an ideal candidate in the person of Seth Low and if the wise and good citizens of all political parties—the men who pay taxes and have real interests at stake—would put their politics away for a little while and vote with the same spirit of common sense that controls their everyday affairs, there would be no question of the final and complete rout of the lemmon and the hungry horde they lead.

MAY LOCATE A BREWERY.

C. H. Orff, of St. Louis, Wanting a Place to Manufacture Beer.

Decision Now.

C. F. Orff, of St. Louis, was in the city this morning enroute to Fort Wayne to look up a location for a brewery. He had in view the abandoned factory of it could be bought and secured on rules for his business and also the land on which the Freeman quarry is located. The last location would be valuable to him from the fact that it possesses an unlimited ice supply. No one in this section of the city is interested in Mr. Orff will return home next Monday to see whether he can buy suitable property. He wants to locate permanently and he will ask no subsidy, something he probably couldn't get. The brewery would employ about twenty hands.

JAMES B. WHITE.

Celebration Society Does Honor to His Memory.

An Address in Which His High Character as a Soul, a Soldier and a Citizen Are Extolled.

THE CELEBRATION SOCIETY OF FORT WAYNE, INDIANA, IN MEMORIAM

James B. White

Born, June 27, 1825, at Dunse, Berwickshire, Scotland.

Died, October 9, 1897, at Fort Wayne, Indiana.

The Celebration Society of Fort Wayne, in such degree as mortals can express the esteem in which its leader was held from its most able supporter, and the manner and defender. There are no idle words, no fulsome praise, for our deceased companion was foremost in all that graces life in this world and his place will not soon, if ever, be filled.

Our morning is sincere, our grief deep, our cup of sorrow brimming full.

James B. White was born in Scotland. His father being a prominent woolen manufacturer of Dunse, not far from Edinburgh. As customary in those days he was apprenticed to learn the trade of a tailor at the age of twelve, but after two years' service he entered his father's establishment and remained there until his nineteenth year, when he determined to seek his fortune in the new world and landed in New York in the summer of 1844.

He soon found his way to the same year he came to Fort Wayne, making his journey by rail, by steamboat on the lakes and by canal to his destination. He landed in debt for his transportation, but immediately went to work at his trade. The work was not to his liking, and he soon had "operative hand" at stone cutting, but soon returned to the trade he had learned. He tried new occupations in Cincinnati and St. Louis, returned to Fort Wayne, and later established himself in Warsaw, where the outbreak of the war found him.

Although a patriot at heart, loving his native country, he was also a patriot American. Loving his adopted country as well that he at once volunteered for the defense of its flag.

In August 1861, he assisted in organizing the 20th Regiment, Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and became captain of Company I.

It was early sent to the front, and he was wounded in the side by a minnie ball at the battle of Shiloh.

Some trouble arose between him and the regimental commander, which his generous spirit would not permit him to endure, and he resigned his commission. Later he became major to the Eighty-eighth, and was in active command and once lead his men to victory in Texas.

Returning to Fort Wayne he established himself in business and created for himself a fortune by wise and prudent management and excelling foresight. His life among us has been an open book.

The page looked upon him as their friend. Elected to congress he proved true to the interests of those who sent him there, and was still the poor man's friend. He did his duty as he saw it. Honest, firm and unyielding in the right, he adorned every station in life to which he was called. Like other patriotic Americans he gave a good share of his love to old records, as his devotion to this society's interests and to its kindly testifies.

A lover of his home, of his wife and children, devoted to them one and all, he set an example for others to emulate, and left them a heritage worth more than the wealth he gathered, a good name, unstained by any wrong doing to his fellow man.

He was essentially a self made man. He was a lover of shams and hypocrisy and a lover of the good and noble.

A good citizen, a brave soldier, an all around man of business, a man whose ear and heart were always open to the appeals of the unfortunate, has gone from our midst, and will be no more with us, but in memory.

But that memory will be rich in good things, and his few faults forgotten, his virtues shall were many will shine with greater lustre as the days go by.

To his bereaved wife and family we extend our heartfelt sympathy and direct that a copy of this memorial be furnished them, that it be entered upon the records of the society and published in the city papers.

REINDEER STATIONS

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 30.—Dr. Sheldon Jackson, United States superintendent of Alaskan schools, who has just returned from Alaska, says: "There is but one solution to the transportation problem in Alaska, and that is the reindeer. He believed that the mines of the Yukon can never be fully developed with out the use of the reindeer. It is my belief that the government could, to great advantage to the people living in Alaska, establish reindeer stations on the Yukon all the way from Dyea to St. Michaels. In this way mails could be transported regularly and expeditiously and the food supply would never be allowed to get to that point where a famine is imminent."

YORKTOWN

Commemorated by the Sons of the Revolution.

One hundred and sixteen years ago yesterday an incident occurred here on the Yorktown peninsula, in Old Virginia, that American poets have always expanded to with pride." Lord Cornwallis surrendered Lieutenant-General Washington and the French allies under Rochambeau, after he had been trapped by an ingenious piece of strategy on a narrow neck of land to the west. That capitulation, the glorious victory of the Continental troops, was the beginning of the end of the war of the revolution. It decided the power of Great Britain in the colonies she had planted in the New World. It wrought to save the effulgent pageant of a land liberated from the tyranny of kings that had severed the patriots through six long years of war fought against greater personages than were ever ordered by soldiers of any land.

That incident was celebrated last evening in the banquet hall of the Waldorf club by the Fort Wayne chapter of the Sons of the Revolution. The banquet was a social affair, brilliant in all its settings and distinguished in its company. A more brilliant assemble of banqueters have not graced the round table of the Waldorf club. The dining room was strikingly embellished with the red, white and blue, draped and festooned with a profusion that obscured the walls. Palms and potted plants completed the simple but effective adornments.

Those who sat at the table were as follows:

Sons of the Revolution—Clark Fairbank, C. E. Bond, C. B. Fitch, John Ross McCulloch, R. H. Carrithan, C. B. Wordsworth, A. E. Bulman, jr., Orla D. Fitch, D. C. Fisher, R. T. St. John, of Marion; R. G. Thompson, Clarence S. Swann, C. S. Graves, Horace G. Granger, C. E. Newton, Theodore Lincoln, R. J. Fisher, O. J. Willson, T. L. Stitt, of Auburn; Charles A. Meares, of Indianapolis, state secretary of the society.

Guests—Henry K. Freeman, P. A. Randall, R. C. Bell, A. P. Burkam, A. L. Randall, C. R. Higgins, C. W. Randall, Robert Millward, M. Foster, Dr. N. J. Deming, T. E. Ellison, Dr. M. F. Porter, Prof. J. N. Study, Van B. Perrine, Charles McGrew, of Wabash; S. L. Morris, Charles B. Lane and H. C. Rockhill.

After the elaborate menu had been disposed of, Dr. A. E. Balson who officiated throughout the evening with compliments so grace and versatility as the symmetrical, introduced the president of the local society of the Sons of Revolution, Mr. Clark Fairbank, who extended to the guests and the members of the society a cordial welcome and explained the purposes of the organization.

Mr. C. H. Newton responded to the toast, "Cornwallis at Yorktown," and paid to that soldier the tribute his military qualities deserved.

Mr. Charles W. Moores, of Indianapolis, responded to the toast, "The Revolutionary Army." The speaker dwelled with eloquence on the high, sturdy and patriotic character of the men composed the patriot army and made some comparisons with subsequent wars in America.

"Old Glory" was a sentiment to which Mr. Thomas L. Britt, of Wabash, responded with splendid eloquence, and he paid a fine tribute to the bravery of the men who went down with the United States warship Trenton in that fearful storm of the Samoan islands a few years ago.

Mr. S. M. Foster responded to the toast, "The Patriot in Times of Peace." Moral and not physical patriotism. Mr. Foster said, was needed in times of peace and it was the patriot's duty to always put his country above himself, and that avarice, greed and self-seeking were the great enemies to liberty.

Responding to the toast, "Some Reforms not Revolutionary in Character," C. H. Fitch advocated the reduction of the number of legislators, the secret ballot in making all political nominations, the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, the teaching of civil government and the duties of citizenship in our public schools and the extension of the right of suffrage to women.

Prof. J. N. Study replied to the toast "American History," by contrasting the treatment of the subject by English and American writers. He said that he thought the time had come when a history of the late war should be written without partisan bias and which could be taught in the schools of both the northern and gulf states.

Dr. Miles F. Porter responded to the toast of "The Revolutionary Doctor," with stories of the devotion and patriotism of two of the greatest of Revolutionary heroes, Dr. Samuel Warren and Dr. Benjamin Rush. To the toast "Jonathan Abroad" Mr. Ross McCulloch responded, and Mr. T. E. Ellison also responded to the toast, "our Guests." The evening concluded with the inspiring song, "America," sung by the society and guests.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON.

work and desperate, went down hill and died his position.

"That once lost in London is seldom regained. Not so in America. Here, when a man falls, if he has the strength to lower up again, he goes to the west, and rubbing up against new society, absorbs fresh imagination and recuperates at once. So one must despair in the land of the free. But London is compact. The Englishman hates to leave his home. His failings are known, and if he remains they are clung in his face. There is no escape for him, and as his friends shun him he falls deeper in disgrace.

"This was the trouble that had beset the shepherd, who, having a sensitive and perhaps weak mind, succumbed to the pressure that surrounded him, and after a time, with a broken spirit, he left England and went to the colonies. He practiced law in Melbourne for some time successfully, but the old habit came back on him, and, as he could not resist temptation, he burned himself in that deep pit again.

"This was the story he told me, and there was no doubt of its truth.

"It was now getting late, and the shepherd insisted on my taking his cot bed—an old canvas cot with a plain gray blanket spread upon it. So, as I was tired, I accepted the offer, and lay down for a night's rest. My companion stretched his tall figure on the grass outside. Jack lay between us.

"The strangeness of the scene, together with the strong tea, seemed to banish sleep from me, and I must have been laying there for an hour, with my eyes closed but quite awake, when presently I heard some thing stirring. Opening my eyes, I saw the shepherd sitting up in the doorway with his head resting on his hand. He seemed uneasy, and bowed himself in sincere devotion in front of the hut. The fire remained still, but I felt that he was awake and watching his master as he walked nervously backward and forward in the moonlight.

"Presently the shepherd stepped in front of the hut and came with a hesitating but irregular step toward the door. He entered slowly, and, stooping down upon his hands and knees, crawled slowly to the chair on which my coat was hanging. He put his hand in the breast pocket and drew forth the flask of liquor. And now he seemed bewildered, as if some strange emotion had seized upon him, and then fell upon his knees as if in prayer.

"Suddenly he seemed to rise, and, instead of drinking the liquor, placed the flask untouched back in the pocket of the coat. Then, stretching himself on the floor, with an apparent air of comfort and satisfaction, he went off to sleep.

"The whole proceeding culminated me that it was broad daylight before I closed my eyes. When I awoke the sun was high in the heavens. My host had prepared breakfast. After our meal he spoke freely of the night's proceedings to me. I told him I had seen all that had taken place.

"I thought it might be so," he said. "The old craving came upon me so strong, too, but if I only prayed for strength it was then. Well, at that moment there was a hand laid on my head, a calmness came over me that I had not felt for years, and when I returned the flask to your pocket I knew them, as I know now, that another drop of liquor will never pass my lips. As God is my judge, I believe it was the angel hand of my dead wife that rested on my feverish head. It is all over now, thank Heaven! and I can leave this lonely place and return to the world again with safety."

After the story of the shepherd Mr. Jefferson paused a moral from the play of "Rip Van Winkle."

Then with hope rekindled the men in that gray audience went back to their rolls.

MILITARY LAW

Will Prevail in and About St. Michaels.

The Large Number of Indians Gathered Around There Makes Such a Course Necessary.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The secretary of war will issue an order today creating a military reservation in that part of Alaska lying within a radius of fifty miles of St. Michaels. The purpose is to confer upon Lieutenant Col. Randall the necessary legal authority to preserve order and protect property in this section of the country both of which are believed to be jeopardized by the large number of lawless characters gathered near the mouth of the Yukon river.

FATAL FIGHT.

A Camp Commissioner Stabs a Cattle Raiser at Wilmington.

PIERRE, Del., Oct. 30.—A special train on the Gulf road last night ran from Wilmington to the city, fifty-seven miles, in fifty-six minutes to bring to a hospital here Senor Noman, a wealthy cattle and sheep owner, who had been shot in the abdomen by Paul Fredrich, a member of the Wilmington council. The men quarreled in regard to a title house which the council had ordered removed. Fredrich says that before he fired Noman had drawn a revolver. Noman denies that he had any weapon. His chances of life are only about one in fifty.

Miss Ida Dorwin, who has been the guest of her cousin, Mrs. F. J. Mann, of 125 Wells street, for the past two weeks, returned to her home at Decatur, Ind. yesterday.

Every butcher-shop needs Pearline. Almost as much as it needs an ice-box. Look at the general greasiness and nastiness around some butcher shops. It isn't that they're less particular there, probably. They're doing the best they can. But they don't use Pearline—and there are some things that must have Pearline to keep properly clean, and among these things are meat markets, butcher shops.

The New

Encyclopedia Britannica

1897.

Remember that this edition contains 12,000 Illustrations, 671 maps and plans, and covers over 250,000 subjects. More than 2,000 of the world's greatest scholars have contributed to this work. It has cost over Three Million Dollars in authorship alone.

THE CHICAGO RECORD

Has secured control of this territory and will for a LIMITED TIME ONLY, furnish this great library to their subscribers at about one-half the publishers' advertised prices, in connection with their great educational enterprise and system of home education.

One year's membership in the Home University League, one year's subscription to "Self-Culture" Magazine and one copy of the new "Guide to Systematic Reading in Encyclopedia Britannica" is given FREE with each set of Encyclopedia. There is also furnished with each set an

Oak Book Case, Free.

Every subscriber—present or prospective—of THE CHICAGO RECORD can secure at wholesale rates the entire set of 30 volumes, delivered all at once, freight paid, to any address, by making a small cash payment. The remaining payments are so spaced that they can easily be met by installments. This arrangement allows THE RECORD'S subscribers to have the use of all the volumes from the outset.

Have you read what some of the great scholars of the world think of this storehouse of knowledge? A president of one of the largest eastern colleges says: "I will defy any man to buy 2,000 volumes that will give him as much a working library as the Encyclopedia Britannica." A great English divine says: "If all other books were destroyed the Bible excepted the world would have lost but little of its information." Have you got it? If so, act at once before this offer is withdrawn. The RECORD'S traveling agent will be in town for a few days. Sample sets of these books are on exhibition at Y. M. C. A. building, 163 Calhoun St., Fort Wayne. Call and examine them while they are here, or cut this coupon out and mail it to THE SENTINEL at once.

SHOP AND RAIL.

The Pennsylvania Extending Its East Yards.

J. H. Sunderland, the L. S. Baggage Master Returns to the City—Rail Shop Notes Happening Nearby.

This morning a large force of workmen began the task of rearranging and extending the railroad yards in the eastern part of the city. Work began at a point sixty-five car lengths east of the Depot road crossing, where it is proposed to put in two receiving tracks, and will continue westward until the entire yard has been rearranged and its facilities for handling trains greatly improved. This is a big contract, as the work must be accomplished without interfering with business. It will hardly be completed before the year 1898 is well advanced.

CAR SHOPS TO RESUME WORK.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 20.—The Brownell Car company, which went into liquidation July 25 and is temporarily in possession of Fred W. Thompson, as trustee, will be reorganized in a few days. The mill is in running order and the factory will resume operations by the first of the month, giving employment to 250 men. H. B. Joseph, representing Mr. Brownell, speaking of the resumption said: "We have received assurances of large orders from cars from several of the large cities throughout the country. I think it is due to a return of prosperity."

AN INDIANA MORTGAGE FILED.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—The general logs of the meeting of the stockholders of the Chicago and North western railway, held September 22, which authorized the issuance of a blanket mortgage and bonds to the amount of $165,000,000, were filed for record today. The purpose of the mortgage is to pay the outstanding obligations of the company in the aggregate principal sum of $110,242,000 and of its allied companies, the Winona and St. Peter and the Dakota Central railroads, amounting to $12,243,000. The bonds will be ninety year bonds, payable November 1, 1997, bearing 5 per cent interest, and will be an obligation for the United States Trust company, of New York, and John A. Stewart as trustees.

SHOP NOTES.

Pittsburg Brakeman W. F. Cooper is on the sick list.

Nickel Plate Train Dispatcher F. W. Urbaine went to Chicago last night.

Wells, Fyrock & Co. are building one hundred refrigerator cars for the Santa Fe.

Ed Ex, of the Base blacksmith shop, is detained at home by the illness of his wife.

Machinist Louis Seitz went to Auburn this morning to set a Baldwin upright engine in operation.

The Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton is now delivering daily at Toledo 200 to 225 carloads of Ohio coals.

Henry Tensing was able to resume his place at the forge this morning, his injured arm being much better.

Pennsylvania Train Dispatcher P. J. Reidy went to Chicago this morning accompanied by his daughter, for a brief visit.

The meeting of the Machinists' union tonight will be followed by a social session and it is hoped the attendance will be large.

Foreman Hiram Pepper, of Wabash carpenters at this point, has returned from a visit with his daughter at Kansas City.

O. W. Lehman has recovered from injuries received by a bicycle collision and this morning resumed his place in the Pittsburg planing mills.

John Elbert, the Vandalia conductor who was killed accidently last Friday, carried a policy for $2,000 with the Order of Railway Conductors.

Last week, in one day, the Columbus and Hocking Valley delivered to lake vessels 9,215 tons of coal, it being transferred by a Brown hoisting machine.

The Brooks locomotive works have secured the order to build twenty ten wheel freight engines for the Lake Shore road. The engine proper will weigh 150,000 pounds.

Anthony Rose has taken the position in the factory of the Anthony Wayne Manufacturing company, recently vacated by Ernest Jouard who quit it to take a position as fireman on the Pittsburg road.

J. W. Koehler, road foreman of engines on the Erie and Ashtabula division of the Pennsylvania system, was in the city over night leaving this morning for the north on the Grand Rapids train.

The Central Vermont is about to be reorganized, the Grand Trunk having a voice in the reorganization. The Central Vermont runs over to the Grand Trunk annually a million dollars' worth of business.

James Gessner, of New West Ohio, is visiting Charles Johnson the veteran Pan Handler, pioneer mills. Mr. Gessner is a harness maker and if he can secure employment at that trade he will remain in the city permanently.

The disbursement of the Pennsylvania Voluntary Relief association during the month of September were in death benefits from accidents, $2,500; in death benefits from natural causes, $4,000; in disablement benefits from accident [illegible] making a grand total of $[illegible] disbursed during the month to still members or in case of death, their legal heirs.

Engineers and Machinists—William Gates, Chester Darnell, Peter Carter and Wilbur Tenney will go to Chicago this evening on Pennsylvania train No. [illegible] to attend the meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and auxiliary.

The earnings of the Northern Pacific are now so large that dividends on its common stock are predicted. The track of the road has been put in good condition and the rates are being increased. The road never handled so large a tonnage as this fall.

Brakemen J. Dooley and C. Vardeman, of the Naked Plate, are off duty, the former on account of the sickness of his wife and the latter for a few days' rest. Brakeman F. Young, of the same road, reported for duty after a layoff on the sick list a few days.

Brother [illegible], who has been recently voted in the Naked Plate shops at Stony Island, is again in the freight service on the Toledo district, with Engineer Bert Crosby at the throttle and Fireman John Hood at the scoop and pick. This engine is practically new, having been in the shops nearly three months.

Indianapolis Journal: George Boone, private secretary of General Manager Ramsey, of the Wabash, and general fuel agent, was in the city yesterday. He states that the Wabash could hardly be doing any better than at the present time. Every engine and car fit for service is kept on the rivers.

Peru Journal: "In circuit court the case of John W. Young vs. the Wabash railroad company in which he asks $50,000 damages for being blacklisted, is at last up for trial before Judge Watkins and a jury after several years of waiting. Judge Hammond and Attorney Stuart of Lafayette are the leading representatives of the road."

Anthony Arnold and Chest Reed, two machinists who were suspended from the Bass works during the dullness of 1897, are back in their old positions. Mr. Arnold, since the date mentioned, had been working at the electric works and the shops of the Western Gas Construction company, also in the Arnold bicycle store. Mr. Reed spent the time he was absent from the shops upon his father's farm, west of the city. Both are good mechanics.

Joseph R. Sunderland is today moving his family and his household goods from the farm to the residence of his daughter, Mrs. W. A. Davis, 111 West DeWald street, where he and his wife will hereafter make their home. The many friends of the couple will welcome them back to the city. For many years Mr. Sunderland was the baggage master at the Wabash depot and a man was better known to the citizens and the traveling men than he was a few years ago.

Within the next sixty days the farmers of Greene county can reach the railway stations with grain, produce and live stock about as well in the muddy road season as in midsummer. Already the Indianapolis and Vincennes has delivered 700 car loads of broken stone at points designated for improving the highways of Greene county, and under the contract 500 more carloads are to be delivered this month and in November, sixty miles of highway in that county being so improved.

Tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock will occur the marriage of John P. Schmit and Miss Sustain Rapp. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Schmit will leave for Cleveland, Ohio, where they will be the guests of the bride's brother, George Rapp, a few days. They will return here next Monday and be "at home" to their friends at No. 41 John street. Mr. Schmit is employed as a helper at Louis Rehling's fine, in the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, and is held in high esteem by his fellow workmen.

The Junior league of Simpson M. E. church will give an entertainment called "The Prohibition Store" one week from next Friday evening. An original program is to be given.

Mr. and Mrs. John Landenberger celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary last evening by entertaining friends at progressive pedro. The couple received many useful presents.

The Eclipse Social club, a new organization of west side young men, will inaugurate their social season by giving a reception and ball at Schroeder's hall this evening. A fine program has been arranged.

Mrs. O. H. Stone and A. A. Parker were guests at the Wayne last night for a few hours, having come here to meet Mrs. George M. Pullman, who was en route home from the east in response to a telegram announcing her husband's death. The party left at 3 o'clock this morning.

E. L. Remy and George F. Felts have purchased the David Lipes farm in Eel River and Lake township and they went out to inspect their new purchase yesterday afternoon. The farm consists of 262 acres, and is one of the largest single tracts in the county. They propose converting it into several farms and sell them.

J. C. Hoverstein, son of Mr and Mrs. F. Hoverstein, of West Wayne street, has gone to the mountain regions of North Carolina for the benefit of his health. The past four years he spent mostly in the south and seemed to be greatly benefited by it. A few months ago he returned home, thinking he could remain here, when his health began to fail, which made it necessary to go south again.

The Wabash Tribune says: "E. F. Yarnelle, of Fort Wayne, a brother of Will Yarnelle, of this city, delighted the assembly in the Presbyterian church Sunday night. Mr. Yarnelle also sang a solo at the Christian Endeavor meeting. Mr. Yarnelle has a clear voice, is a thorough master of it, and always delights his hearers. The entire audience hopes to again hear him sing in Wabash."

Nothing is so nerve-trying as a pair of "squeaky" shoes. To remedy the squeak stand the shoes in a tin plate covered with just enough turpentine to reach the line of the inner sole without touching the upper leather. Let it soak for a day and then dry for two days before wearing, when it will be found that the soles are not only noiseless, but rendered soft, and with the almond lustre as long. The turpentine seems to harden the leather without stiffening it.

Christian Cleaver, a farmer residing seven miles south of the city on the Pigeon road, was in the city last evening and in conversation views on the subject of horses with James B. Shoaff, he stated that he had a family horse that had been on his farm thirty eight years. The animal was reared by him and had done good service up to a few years ago. The oldest horse that has come to the notice of equine trainers in this vicinity was thirty three years old. Mr. Cleaver says that his old favorite will probably reach its fortieth birthday anniversary, but doubts if life can be prolonged much beyond that.

A QUESTION.

County Commissioners Are Presented With a Knotty One.

The Law Says Orff Had to Have Qualified for Office—Difficult Way Made Over.

A question involving some intricacies of law has been brought to the front by the death of John Orff, county commissioner-elect. There is little reason to doubt that about the first of the present month Mr. Orff complied with the requirements as the law prescribes for the qualification of a commissioner. No bond as required of a commissioner and he receives no commission from the governor of the state, as in the case of all other county officers. No more is necessary than that he obtain from the county clerk his certificate of election, deposit it with the county auditor and take the oath of office, which may be taken before any person competent to administer the legal oath. Mr. Orff is believed to have done these things.

The question now is whether these formalities constitute complete qualification or whether qualification could only be complete upon the expiration of the predecessor's term. The law says a county commissioner shall hold office for a term of three years, or until a successor has been elected and qualified. Had Mr. Orff fully qualified? If it is held that he had, then a successor will to be elected in the manner prescribed by law to hold the office until the next general election. If it is held that he had not fully qualified then Commissioner Stellhorn will hold over in accordance with the law.

The commissioners refuse to discuss the succession or candidates for the place. Commissioner Stellhorn is frequently mentioned as Mr. C. E. Orff, son of the late John Orff.

HEART FAILURE

Claims Mrs. Elizabeth Towne With Only Slight Warning.

Ill and Mrs. Henry Frech Lose a Child—Obituaries of Mr. and—The Funeral and Funerals.

At 7:30 o'clock this morning Mrs. Elizabeth Towne, wife of James Towne, foreman of the Fort Wayne Foundry and Machine company, died suddenly at her home, 524 East Wayne street, of heart failure, as a result of typhoid fever. Mrs. Towne had recently recovered from typhoid and her constitution was so weakened by the disease that the heart action was irregular, causing death to come quickly and without much warning. Deceased was born in Germany. She age was forty five years, nine months and two days.

HART FRECH.

Louis, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Frech, of 9 Remy avenue, died last night of flux, aged one year and six months. George Frech, the lad who was murdered a year ago, was a son of the bereaved parents.

THEATER AND FUNERALS.

The funeral of Mrs. John Lassus was held from the Cathedral this morning and was very largely attended. Many French residents from all parts of the county came to attend the obsequies, as the family is well known.

Eva, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Van Meter, of Howe avenue, died this morning of typhoid fever. Her age was fifteen years, four months and seventeen days.

HAPPILY WEDDED.

Fort Waynetes Attended a Wedding at Garrett.

Father McCarthy Performs Marriage of Charles Pool and Miss Amelia Ortlieb This Evening.

Frank W. Fisher was married to Miss Loretta McCarthy at Garrett, Ind., last Tuesday morning, the ceremony being performed in the St. Peter's Catholic church. E. A. Vogedine and Miss Nellie Carl, of this city, attended the bridal couple. The church was filled with friends and after the knot was tied a large number repaired to the home of the bride, where a reception was held. Mr. Fisher and his bride are both well known in Fort Wayne. Upon their departure on a wedding trip rice was showered around them in great quantities.

PAUL-ORTLIEB.

This evening Charles Paul and Miss Amelia Ortlieb will be married at the St. Paul's Lutheran church. After the ceremony a reception will be held at the residence of the bride's father, on West Jefferson street. The contracting parties are popular and congratulations will come from all sides.

KRUSEN-SEES.

Yesterday afternoon, at St. Paul's Lutheran church, occurred the wedding of Henry Krousser to Miss Elizabeth Sees. A reception was given at the bride's home, at 28 Hanna street, in the evening.

LYN-McCLARE.

This morning, at St. Patricks Catholic church, was solemnized the marriage of John Lynch to Miss Clara B. Clark, the Rev. Father Delaney performing the ceremony. A reception will be held at the new home of the bridal couple, on Brandriff street, this evening.

ANIMALS PERISH.

Lively Blaze on Montgomery street Early This Morning—Horses Burned.

At 2 o'clock this morning the fire department made a run to the premises at 92, 94 and 96 Montgomery street, where four barns were burning. The structures were totally destroyed. Mr. Bennett, of Larwill, and John Gaetje, of this city, owned the property. William Lindeman, the tenant occupied one of the barns, and he sustained a loss of a lot of hay and feed. The horse contained in the barn was rescued by Captain Borgman. A number of fowls and a watch dog were cremated. The loss to the owners of the property will be about $600.

Lord Lonsdale is a master of the most fashionable jerk of the shoulder in England. It is no easy task to control a bull when many number 700 kilogrammes or more, but Lonsdale did it so well that when he wished to tough the mastering the hair guaranteed a largely increased subscription to double lines to meet the augmented swelling expense of locating the country. A performance of Lord Lonsdale's which created great interest at the time was the driving match he arranged with Lord Shrewsbury in March, 1841. Lord Shrewsbury, owing to a misapprehension, did not come to the starting post. Lord Lonsdale did, and performed the feat of driving (1) a single horse, (2) a pair, (3) a four in hand and (4) a pair, riding postillion five miles each over a bad stretch of road in 15 minutes 35 4-5 seconds, or 20 miles in 58 minutes 55 4-5 seconds, including changes of vehicle.

English Soldiers Very Brave.

In Great Britain the position of the private soldier has one advantage over all other trades. At the age of 29 he can retire on a pension of from 50 cents to $1.12 a day. There is no honorary that secures such a provision for a non-linguman.

PROTECT AGAINST DISEASE.

I have purchased medicine here for forty five years and the only remedy that I have ever found for general debility and nervousness, or that would build up the whole system, was Hood's Sarsaparilla. In fact, when all seemed will cure. This is how it cured me. I had a severe attack of la grippe in the winter of 1895. I was left very weak and nervous, could not sleep, had no appetite, and was all run down. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and it built me up, toned my nerves, and gave me an appetite. I have since taken it for spring medicine and have found it a perfect protection against disease. A. J. Spencer, Pharmacist, Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.
